Two Previously Restricted Haiphong Targets Bombed

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy jets bombed two new targets near the center of Haiphong on Saturday.

One was the big shipyard 1.5 miles west of the port city's center. Pilots said they "walked their bombs" through the yard, which is capable of producing 10 per cent of the country's steel barges.

Also bombed for the first time in the Vietnam war was a sprawling storage area 1.3 miles south of Haiphong's center. Both targets had been on the Pentagon's restricted list.

In South Vietnam, U.S. Marines, planes and artillery thwarted a fresh attempt by Communist troops Saturday to crack the Leatherneck shield against mass invasion from the North by a direct ground attack in the Con Thien sector.

The U.S. Command said a Marine jet, aloft Friday to combat the revived enemy pressure, had dropped two 500-pound bombs on Con Thien by mistake, killing two Marines and wounding 21.

The raids on the shipyard at North Vietnam's major port city resulted in heavy damage to the yard, according to Navy pilots from the carrier Constellation. Headquarters said the yard was capable of producing 10 per cent of North Vietnam's steel barges. The barges are the principal carrier of munitions, fuel and other supplies used by the North Vietnamese on their many rivers and canals and along their coast in the Gulf of Tonkin.

U.S. headquarters said other fliers from the Constellation hit the storage area near the city's center.

A headquarters announcement said: "Pilots reported all buildings destroyed or damaged, with one secondary explosion and residual fires sending smoke to 3,000 feet."

Headquarters said 10 anti-aircraft gun sites in the Haiphong target areas were silenced by American planes.

While carrier-based Navy fliers concentrated on Haiphong and vicinity Saturday, Air Force fighter-bombers from Thailand bases struck near Hanoi.

The Air Force Phantom and Thunderchief jets bombed two boat repair yards 27 miles and 31 miles west-northwest of Hanoi, the U.S. Command said. The two facilities—the Xom Trai and HaoLoan boatyards, are located near the Red River.

Pilots reported all bombs were on target, but said smoke and clouds prevented an assessment of damage.

Air Force pilots also attacked the Quang Kien railroad causeway 39 miles northeast of Hanoi and the Kep rail yards 38 miles northeast of the Red capital.

Headquarters said the causeway was heavily damaged and left unserviceable.

Among the Navy strikes in the Haiphong area, A6 Intruders from the Constellation attacked the Haiphong highway bridge 2.5 miles southeast of the city, a target previously hit several times in the last month.

There was no new major ground fighting reported in South Vietnam, but B52 bombers kept up their raids in support of the U.S. (Turn to Page Nine)

Expect UN Showdown On Mideast Tomorrow

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant said Saturday he expected American-Egyptian talks Monday to show whether there would be an agreement for a postwar settlement in the Middle East.

The General Assembly, ending its general debate Friday night, postponed debate on the Middle East indefinitely to give more time for private negotiations toward action on that question in the Security Council.

Thant, leaving headquarters for a luncheon engagement, was asked by reporters if he expected some agreement next week that could become the basis for Security Council action toward a solution following Israel's war of last June 5-10 with Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

He replied that he had expected that to become clear this week but now "it seems this will be clear only on Monday." That talks, he believed, between the United Arab Republic and the United States.

"They have been having contacts, as you know," he went on. "According to my information, there will be contacts on Monday."

As to whether he expected an agreement actually would result, he said, "It's difficult to anticipate."

Asked if any particular proposal was pending between the two, he said, "Yes, there are a few proposals going back and forth."

He did not say what they were. But, in answer to a question, he confirmed that one proposal under discussion was an intended Soviet-U.S. resolution that was drawn up last July for the assembly's Middle-East emergency session but was never submitted because the Arabs rejected it in advance.

Asked whether the Soviet Union was in on the talks, he said, "I don't think the USSR is involved here—but maybe in Washington."

Arthur J. Goldberg, the United States' U.N. ambassador, Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet Union's Washington ambassador, in Washington last Tuesday, resumed negotiations that had produced the July draft.

But U.N. diplomats informed on the conversation said the two disagreed. The informants said the disagreement was both on what the July draft actually said and also on what it meant.

Here at the United Nations, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Goldberg have had a series of meetings with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad this month and last. But little information on these talks has come out.

Administration Called Deceptive By Gov. Romney

GRAYSLAKE, Ill. (AP) — Accusing the Johnson administration of "fiscal irresponsibility and deception," Michigan Gov. George Romney said Saturday the people are ready to turn to Republicans for leadership.

"That's why we're going to win the House of Representatives and put a Republican in the White House in 1968," Romney said in a speech prepared for delivery at a Lake County GOP fund-raising dinner. (Turn to Page Nine)

Hong Kong Suffers Renewed Violence

HONG KONG (AP) — Chinese Communists added 21 more to their two-day terrorist bomb toll of dead and wounded Saturday, kidnapped a British official and vowed to continue violence until Hong Kong's British government "admits its crimes."

Since Friday, terrorists have killed two persons, wounded 54, and planted about 70 bombs and more than 150 fake and scare bombs—the latter containing explosives but no fragmentation material—throughout the colony.

It was the most widespread bombing attack in six months of continuing Communist violence that has taken 41 lives since it began May 11.

The fate of the kidnapped border official, dragged across the border into China while British soldiers and other officials watched, was not known.

Government officials withheld his name until they could notify his family in England.

The official was trying to mediate a dispute between Red Chinese farmers and the Hong Kong government over a fence on land Hong Kong bought from a Chinese Communist farmer.

He was the fourth man kidnapped from Hong Kong in two weeks.

One, a Hong Kong Chinese policeman seized in border straddling Sha Tao Kok village, was released two days later. There has been no word of what happened to the other two, both Hong Kong Chinese residents of the border area.

In Hong Kong city, the colony's major Communist newspapers gloated over the success of the two days of bombing attacks and, in effect, promised more to come if the "British fascists do not bow their heads."

The weekend casualties included the terrorist bomb killing of a Hong Kong policeman and an 18-year-old Chinese youth, ripped by fragments of a bomb hurled at a police and army demolition team lured to position by a fake bomb planted as bait.

Wounded were eight more police, three British army demolition experts, and 43 Chinese civilians, including 17 children and young teen-agers.

Union Indicates Settlement Near

DETROIT (AP) — With the cracking of long-deadlocked negotiations, there were indications Saturday that the United Auto Workers Union and Ford Motor Co. may be within sight of an agreement that would end a 39-day-old strike.

The UAW called out its 160,000 members in Ford plants across the country Sept. 7 to support new contract demands. Ford has built no new cars since.

The first report of any progress toward settlement came near Friday midnight in the wake of an eight-hour bargaining session, the 53rd meeting between the two sides since negotiations opened back on July 11.

Ford made the union a new offer "in an effort to move these negotiations toward a successful conclusion."

The union came right back with a counter offer, but said that the company's proposal represented "some movement and progress."

Then the two sides took a break until 1 p.m. Saturday. The talks were still under way

Melting Pot Simmers As New Law Is Felt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pattern of immigration into the United States has been radically altered by the new law enacted in 1965, with some traditional sources being largely cut off.

By next July 1, when the full impact of the law will first be felt, Southern European and Asian nations will be supplying most of the immigration from outside North and South America, and the once-heavy flow from Western Europe will be down to a trickle.

This is the picture projected by the State Department on the basis of a year's experience under the law. Its study, which has not been made public, also shows that the new law has resulted in a swift buildup of backlogs in some categories of immigrants.

The basic feature of the 1965 act was its elimination of the old system of admitting immigrants on the basis of their nationality, with each nation assigned a quota. Most of the big quotas went to Western European nations.

Now preference is given to close relatives of U.S. residents and skilled professionals and workers. Within such categories immigrants are admitted on a first-come, first-served basis up to a maximum of 20,000 from any one nation and a total ceiling of 170,000 plus immediate relatives, who are outside the ceiling.

The old quota system is being phased out gradually. In the meantime, unused numbers go into a pool available to nations with big backlogs. The quotas will be finally abolished next July 1.

The dramatic effect of the new law is seen in the State Department's listing of the top 10 nations in total immigration for the last year the old law was in effect, the first year under the new one, and an estimate for fiscal 1969 starting next July 1.

In the last full year of the old law's operation, Great Britain topped the list with 29,619; followed by Germany, with 26,619; Italy, 9,986; Poland, 7,328; Ireland, 5,555; and France, the Netherlands, Japan, Russia and Sweden bunched between 2,000 and 4,000.

During the first year under the new law, Great Britain clung to the top with 28,750, but Italy came next with 25,994, followed by China, 19,329; Germany, 16,863; Portugal, 13,412; Greece, 13,322; the Philippines, 9,817; Poland, 5,258; Yugoslavia, 4,615; and India, 4,337.

In the estimate for the year beginning next July 1, the list reads:

Italy, 26,300; Greece, 22,300; China, 22,000; Portugal, 21,100; the Philippines, 16,000; Germany, 12,000; Great Britain, 6,500; India, 6,300; Poland, 6,000; and Yugoslavia, 5,500.

TOKYO STUDENTS DEMONSTRATE
TOKYO (AP) — About 350 Zengakuren students staged an orderly protest rally Saturday in memory of an 18-year-old university student who was killed in last Sunday's demonstration protesting Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's visit to South Vietnam.

"When it comes down to time for them to vote, I don't think the people are going to find any great differences in the President's policies and those of his opponent."

"The people who are criticizing the President now are criticizing specific actions that he is taking or actions that he refuses to take. Any Republican nominee—and I have no idea who he will be—is going to have to be specific about what he would do on those points."

"He won't be able to get away with saying that he will bring the war to an end. The voters will want to know how he would do it and I doubt that any Republican will have a better solution than the President offers of fighting it out until we can get an honorable peace."

Russell said Johnson, whom he sees frequently and privately at the White House, appears to be on those points.

The assembly met in plenary session as a controversy deepened over freedom of speech for the congress and its links with the Catholic bishops synod meeting simultaneously in the Vatican.

In the synod, bishops were urged to reaffirm the education of seminarians to celibacy and heard a dramatic appeal for radical seminary reform from Bishop Fulton J. Sheen of Rochester, N.Y.

The contraception issue that erupted on this fourth day of the week-long congress placed the laymen in direct confrontation with Pope Paul VI. Long ago he reserved to himself the decision on whether to lift the Catholic ban against any use of birth control other than natural means.

On this point, Mrs. Tine Goovaert-Halkes of Holland told the congress the majority of delegates at her workshop on man-woman relations felt: "We cannot lay the decision of whether or not to apply birth control on the shoulders of one man."

Another delegate, Charles S. Wohl, a Toledo, Ohio, surgeon, said most participants in his workshop also wanted the decision to be left to couples. He added that birth control means should be "dependable, feasible and moral."

Soviets Back Up Economy Goals

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is quietly backing away from some of its 1970 economic goals, and Western economic analysts here said Saturday a likely reason is high military costs.

The military training program is being expanded, an antiballistic missile defense system is reported being built and aid to Vietnamese Communists seems to be rising.

The apparent shift in resource allocations is being accompanied by public assurances that Soviet living standards will continue to rise. The people are being promised both butter and guns.

The Western analysts expect a generally booming Soviet economy to go on producing more consumer benefits. Life, still hard in this country by Western consumer-economy standards, is getting better.

But in some ways it is not going to get better as fast as was promised when the current 1966-70 economic planning period began. The analysts pointed especially to the quality and quantity of food in shops and to public services.

Their observations were based on speeches this week to the Supreme Soviet, or parliament, outlining economic plans for 1968-70.

The speech of the economic planning boss, Deputy Premier Nikolai K. Baibakov, claimed a number of the goals he mentioned were consistent with original promises. But on other points, he quoted statistics without making such claims.

By 1970 production will not be so high as announced early last year for electricity, gas, plastics and synthetic resins, or chemical fibers, the latter two categories directly tied to consumer goods. Investment in improving backward Soviet agriculture will be down 13 per cent from promises and over-all investment down 2 per cent.

But industrial production is going to be ahead of the promises.

This could mean more consumer goods such as television sets and refrigerators, the current stars of consumer production attention.

Call Many Witnesses In Civil Rights Trial

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — A federal jury heard witness after witness testify Saturday about the character and alibis of 18 white men on trial for conspiracy in the backwoods slaying of three civil rights workers in 1964.

Trying to destroy the Justice Department's case, defense lawyers kept testimony flowing—at one point calling a new witness every seven minutes. They predicted the all-white jury of seven women and five men would get the case by mid-week.

By noon, when U.S. Dist. Court Judge Harold Cox recessed the trial until Monday, the defense had produced 40 witnesses since the government rested Friday afternoon.

Most of the testimony was confined to the character of the charged men and their whereabouts on June 21, 1964, the night the prosecution claims a band of Ku Klux Klansmen murdered the three young workers near Philadelphia, Miss.

Michael Schwerner, 24, Andrew Goodman, 20, white New Yorkers, and James Chaney, 22,

A Negro from Meridian, were found bullet-riddled and buried in an earthen dam Aug. 4, 1964. FBI agents dug up the bodies after a 44-day search that brought worldwide attention to the racially troubled Mississippi area.

State charges were never filed in the case, but a federal grand jury indicted 19 men under a 97-year-old law on charges they violated the workers' civil rights. Conviction could mean a life term.

Nitze Charges Hanoi Selling POW Films

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul H. Nitze accused Hanoi Saturday of merchandising films and photographs of captured U.S. servicemen for cash and callous propaganda.

"The enemy is seeking to exploit these prisoners," Nitze said in a sharply worded three-page statement.

Nitze's comments apparently were prompted by the appearance of an East German magazine which published photographs of American airmen imprisoned in a camp they called the "Hilton Hanoi."

Life magazine also is publishing a series of pictures of prisoners in North Vietnam. It reports the photos were obtained from two East German journalists.

In its story, Life notes that "the U.S. government believes the camp is a deception and that many of the pictures have been staged." Ambassador-at-Large W. Averell Harriman denounces them as a "travesty." Other U.S. experts see disturbing parallels to harsh treatment meted out to American prisoners half a generation ago by North Korea.

In response to Nitze's statement, William R. McAndrew, president of NBC News, issued a statement saying, "As a common practice, all network news organizations, including NBC News, clearly label this type of film as having been acquired from Communist sources." Exhibiting prisoners of war is a violation of the Geneva convention to which North Vietnam subscribes, Nitze said.

"Yet this is exactly what the Hanoi government has been doing with its parade of prisoners through the streets of Hanoi and its other filmed public displays of our captured servicemen," he stated.

"On a carefully selected basis, Hanoi's leaders have been permitting handpicked newsmen to film and photograph a few prisoners," Nitze continued. "Then, in collusion with such other Communist governments as East Germany, Hanoi has arranged for propaganda films of U.S. prisoners of war to be sold throughout the world for a price."

Nitze said "it is important that the American people know that these films are Communist propaganda and that this propaganda is being sold for hard cash."

Nitze is a member of a Prisoner of War Policy Committee which the Pentagon formed in September to deal with matters involving military personnel reported as missing or captured.

Nitze charged also that Hanoi has resorted to fakery in its propaganda program. The Pentagon currently lists 212 men as captured, 101 Navy, 88 Air Force, 14 Army and nine Marines. In addition 570 are listed as missing, including 376 Air Force, 78 Navy, 60 Army and 56 Marines.

Impact On Environment

Road building is no longer the sole province of the engineer and the bulldozer. There is rising awareness that future highways must be planned not merely as lines from one place to another, but with their total environmental impact in mind.

This concept is exemplified by an experimental program whereby the federal government will set up a road-building team of economists, psychologists, political scientists and sociologists. Experts in these fields will help to plan a stretch of interstate highway cutting through Baltimore.

Transportation Secretary Alan S. Boyd has announced that these men will work on routing and design of the highway with city planners, architects and safety engineers. Predicting that such a combination of talent might set a pattern for the nation's cities, Boyd remarked, "For the first time in any major city, all the environmental skills available will be brought to bear on the design of a highway from the very beginning."

The Baltimore study will cover all phases of the prospective road's impact on the community — from local neighborhoods to mass transit. The importance of this approach is becoming more and more evident. Thought must increasingly be given to all aspects of man's environment — not only where and how he lives, but how he gets to and from his home and place of work. The Baltimore experiment will be watched with interest by environmental planners in other cities.

Auguries Of Winter

When the new edition of the Farmer's Almanac was announced, one writer described it as "108 years older than the U.S. Weather Bureau and sometimes more accurate." At any rate, the Almanac has hit the nail on the head often enough to make its predictions worthy of attention even in an era of weather satellites and computerized forecasts.

It deserves passing note, therefore, that this venerable publication forecasts a repeat performance of the walloping 1967 January snowstorm next year. Not to mention a major snowstorm sweeping from Chicago east to the coast in late April. All of which makes it sound like quite a winter ahead.

It's not so very far ahead, at that. Just for the fun of it — if fun is the word — we scanned the nationwide temperature listings the day the news about the Farmer's almanac appeared. The previous day's highs sounded a trifle ominous: 55 in St. Louis, 47 in Omaha and Minneapolis, 52 in Bismark, 46 in Fairbanks, and so on. With lows ranging down to 27 in Flagstaff, Ariz., and 18 in Fairbanks. Eighteen! There are a few balmy days left, but winter's just around the corner.

The Waning Hippies

Many a harried parent's heart may jump with relief at the thought that Ron Thelin might just be right about the hippies. The proprietor of the Psychedelic Shop, which for a year and a half has been a popular hippie haunt in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district, says the flower children are withering on the vine. We will not mourn their passing if he proves right, and think few others will.

This is not to say that the hippies merit undiluted condemnation. For all their sloppy dress and conduct, for all their dabbling in "pot" and LSD, they are as much deserving of pity as of censure. It is unproductive to spout wrath at these bewildered, disoriented young people. Trying to understand them is more to the point.

But understanding may breed disquiet. The hippie philosophy of escape from reality — of "tuning out" — constitutes a genuine threat to society. It is a threat that cannot be ignored because so many people have been attracted to this curious un-life whose focus seems to be entirely on stimuli for their own sake. If the hippies are indeed on the decline, that is good news.

Communication

Editor of Jacksonville Journal Courier
Dear Sir:

Being former Jacksonville residents and campers we were real proud when we heard Jacksonville had made a campground on the north side of Lake Jacksonville.

In fact we have talked this point up very highly among our camping friends, encouraging any of them traveling south to make it a point to camp there.

You can imagine our disappointment when three families took our advice and on returning home told us they'd never camp there again, the reason being the way they were treated by the custodian.

Three units pulled into the campground, two were planning to stay overnight and one family just long enough to prepare a meal and move on. The custodian informed Mr. Connor (Permit No. 00511) that in the future anyone stopping even long enough to prepare a meal and leave would have to pay one dollar for the privilege even though they were with friends who were staying overnight. I feel sure the "city fathers" are not aware of this and that necessary steps will be taken to make amends for this situation for they must be aware of the business campers bring into the area or they would not have established the campground. I also feel they realize the damage that can be done by someone who is rude and a real smart aleck when doing business with someone.

I sincerely hope this matter is adjusted so campers leaving the Jacksonville area have a good word for the "hometown."

Sincerely yours,

If You're Pricing Cabbage, 26,911 Words Tell How

By DAVE BURGIN
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — When President Kennedy took office, one of the first things he did was instruct cabinet members who had reports for him to get to the point.

"Lincoln needed only 260 words to write the Gettysburg Address," the late president was fond of saying. Or, "The Ten Commandments contain only 300 words." The present administration, however, apparently likes things spelled out.

How else can you explain a Department of Agriculture order setting price on cabbages in 26,911 words?

INITIAL REACTION was stunned silence. The handful of men and women on the House floor and in the press gallery were witnessing a shocker.

Rep. John H. Buchanan Jr., a clear-cut Republican from Alabama, rose slowly and said, "I announce my total and unqualified support for President Johnson."

Buchanan paused, then added, "Let the record show that I think the President's high ability is exceeded only by the President's charm and perspicacity."

After another pause, Buchanan cracked the quiet by explaining he was talking about Miss Cathy Johnson, an Alabama girl who'd been elected president Girls' State.

Jim Berry is a cartoonist whose "Berry's World" panel cartoons, serviced by the Newspaper Enterprise Association, adorn the walls of many public offices here. Now he has a book out, "Berry's World" (Four Winds Press, $3.95), which is bound to be a favorite of political types who see some humor in it all.

Berry's gags often put deep meaning into the laughter. And no one and no topic is spared.

A few lines in the book which stand out:

Teen-agers — "I dunno, Dad — before I settle down, I want to get married a few times!"

The war — "O.K., then — heads, we go on patrol — tails, we use our passes and go into Saigon!"

Education — "It's a big responsibility, shaping young minds and knowing that you influence which way they demonstrate."

Bobby Kennedy and brood — "By the way, Ethel, just how many cabinet posts are there?"

Hippies — "Oh, I believe in pacifism, but I wouldn't fight for it!"

President Johnson broke up a knot of reporters the other day when he joined the group and told the story of an old college chum who predicted pal Lyndon wouldn't amount to a hill of beans.

"Old Lyndon will never commit suicide. He'd fall sleep thinking about it."

Tax Hike Will Not Halt Upward Spiral Of Prices

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — It is a cruel hoax to say President Johnson's proposed tax hike will stop the current inflation.

Tax increases can put a damper on one kind of inflation — the spiraling of prices resulting from soaring demand not matched by increased production.

But today's price rises — by and large — are not the result of shortages.

They're the result, basically, of a heavy increase in wages, which reflects itself in higher costs through industry. Some companies are able to absorb these higher labor costs. Most are not. Therefore, the price increases in steel, aluminum, copper, rubber, freight rates chemicals, building materials and in medical costs.

These cost increases in "basic industries" inevitably force an increase in consumer prices on a wide front, soon in some cases, later in others.

Presidential counseling with industry will not stop the overall price rises this time as President Kennedy's hard talking did so dramatically some years back with steel.

Neither will Defense Department threats be effective in rolling back today's price rises in the way Defense Secretary Robert McNamara held down aluminum and copper prices two years ago by manipulation of the stockpiles.

In fact, it can be said with certainty that administration efforts to hold the price line will be as ineffective as were administration requests to labor to hold the 3.2 per cent or thereabouts line in asking for wage increases in the face of rising living costs.

Higher taxes, if voted, will mean higher costs. The higher costs will be passed on to the consumer in the form of still higher prices. This will lead to stronger requests by labor for larger incomes.

The only way in which industry can meet these increased costs without raising prices is by increased efficiency and large-scale automation.

This will be possible on a wide scale only through a series of government and private actions.

The diversion of sizable amounts of government funds into heavier research on new industrial techniques.

Simplification and speeding of the patent process and other steps to spur inventions and quicken their widespread use.

More work to convert the startling discoveries of the multibillion-dollar space and military programs into improved industrial techniques.

— A heavy investment in electronic and computer research to speed automation over much wider areas of industry.

— Greater incentives to companies which modernize old plants and to firms which increase their research spending.

Ann Landers:

Needs Privacy While Dressing

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 and started to wear a bra four months ago. My nine-year-old cousin (boy) who lives next door likes to come into my bedroom while I am getting dressed. He has started to tease me about my bra in front of other people, telling them I wear a girdle "up there." I get very embarrassed and would like your advice on how I can get this brat to keep his big mouth shut.—BLUSHED OUT

Dear Blushed: What's a nine-year-old cousin (boy) doing in your bedroom while you are getting dressed? Keep him out and you won't have to worry about his big mouth.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to comment on the letter from the mother who was upset about her 17-year-old daughter going steady with a young man she did not approve of. Your advice was perfect. I wish every mother in the world could read it.

My mother made my life miserable because she disliked the boy I was going with. I was 17, no longer a child, and I resented her bossiness. Naturally, the more she talked against Joe the more determined I was to keep going with him. After a few months I realized he really wasn't much, and the main reason I kept seeking him was because my mother hated him so.

The day before Christmas Mom said, "I give up. If you are really in love with Joe I will try to see the qualities in him that you think are so wonderful."

That did it. New Year's Eve I broke up with him and felt as if a 10-ton weight had been lifted from my shoulders. I would have done it several months sooner if my mother had stayed out of it. I am sure she learned from that experience because she never talked against any fellow again. I am happily married now and Mother is crazy about my husband, but I never knew it until I got my ring. — CLOSE CALL

Dear Close: There's no substitute for experience, and yours is a classic. Thank you for being so honest. Not every girl would be willing to lay it on the line as you did.

Dear Ann Landers: I have read many letters in your column from people who are fed up on money showers and other poorly disguised gimmicks for getting cash out of friends and relatives.

I attended a pre-shower party yesterday which was the last straw. It was held at the home of the bride-to-be. Her mother and aunt co-hosted the party. On the dining room table were displayed several appliances, (toaster, electric percolator, can opener, blending machine, steam iron) stacks of bed linen, a place setting of china and several pieces of silver. The prices were all in evidence. The bride's aunt announced, "These lovely things have not been purchased — only borrowed from the stores. We would like you people to write down what you'd like to give the bride as a wedding gift. We will phone you and let you know if someone has already spoken for that particular gift. In this way we will avoid duplicates."

Am I wrong to feel this is just about the bottom of the barrel? What would you do under the circumstances? — INSULTED

Dear Insulted: I'd ignore all hints, guides and suggestions and buy the bride something that was not being touted.

Confidential to: Worried: It sounds as if you have something to worry about. But how can you expect me to know the answer? The quickest way way to find out is a rabbit test. See your doctor.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gunslingers Gone, Trails Overgrown, But Beef Still King In Dodge City

EDITOR'S NOTE—The lusty cow town of yesteryear has vanished and today the only hell-raising gunslingers and fearless marshals seen in Dodge City are on television. But cows and beef are still mighty important to Wyatt Earp's old town in Kansas.

By DON KENDALL, Associated Press Writer
DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — The gunslingers are gone, and the rules worn by the trailherds of the 1870s are grown over by heavy grass. But Dodge City remains a cow town, one of the biggest in the world. It also is symbolic of what is happening in the production of beef for today's dinner table. More cattle are bought and sold here in a year than ever. bawled their way up the long trail from the Texas plains a century ago.

The peak was 1884 when 106 herds, totaling more than 300,000 lanky, tough Longhorns, arrived at the Santa Fe railroad's loading pens. Now, without the lustiness of fast-shooting marshals, carousing cowboys and wicked town girls, Dodge City's auction companies sell half a million cattle a year.

Most of these are young animals requiring more feed and maturity before they are turned into steaks and roasts for the supermarket trade.

To Market, To Market
A decade ago most of the young, thin cattle produced in western Kansas moved into farm feedlots in Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois. Today, they're fed at home and shipped directly to slaughter in the eastern market.

"In the near future this area will be one of the largest cattle-feeding areas in the world," said Walt Hackney, a transplanted Iowan who manages a pushbutton meat packing plant at nearby Garden City. Irrigation has changed western Kansas from a grain basket for the Midwest 10 years ago into one of the biggest boom areas in the history of beef.

Huge feedlots, some of them holding 20,000 head or more, have helped change the picture. Less than six months each animal is pampered, fed and changed from a clumsy adolescent into a mature, waddling, 1,000-lb. candidate for the steak shop.

Federal farm programs which have restricted wheat production have contributed. Irrigation and the production of local feed are other factors.

"When they cut down on wheat, farmers have to use their land for something," said rancher Leigh Warner of neighboring Cimarron, "and cattle go to the government for handouts." The romance of the old days is hard to dilute, even with electrically driven posthole diggers, computers, automatic feeders and scientific feedlots where 2½ pounds a day are put on each animal. Cowboys still come into Dodge City for good times—in pickup trucks and fastback sports cars that sometimes tow horse trailers behind. And the swinging doors of a reconstructed Long Branch saloon still creak regularly in the tourist traffic—only soft drinks are served, however. But the demand for better meat has made its impact. The $1.5 billion Kansas agricultural economy has grown fat with its cattle and few would want to return to the old ways.

Where do top executives shop for their suits?

By ROBERTA NASH

"Finance" magazine sent a questionnaire to subscribers.

Their median salary was $30,000. (Lowest was $8,500; highest was $500,000!) 94% were vice-presidents or above.

As to suit labels: the 4 names mentioned most included 2 national brands, 2 stores. One store was Brooks Bros. The other? J. C. Penney.

Surprised? I was—'til I realized these men base decisions on value. Why expect their shrewdness to stop at the office?

Churches, Use PR Experts
To Get Message to Public

By DAVID POLING
When Pope Paul VI visited the United Nations two years ago, he had the opportunity to make a personal appeal for world peace. His motorcade was greeted by hundreds of thousands of children and adults. His address was beamed throughout the world on Telsat. That evening millions of viewers were inspired by the service at Yankee Stadium, with the Holy Father giving his blessing to the faithful and his greetings to all men of good will.

Yet all of this co-ordination of press and mass communications would have been impossible without the steady hand of public relations expert, Edward V. O'Brien. Heading up his own firm, Mr. O'Brien demonstrated the skills and expertise that religious leaders and groups must use in this century of communications.

For his leadership, O'Brien has just been made Knight of the Holy Sepulchre, one of the highest awards that a Catholic layman can receive.

Some church leaders have been afraid of PR. They do not want the charge of public "manipulation" or any Madison Avenue persuasions attached to the cause of religion. I think they are wrong. They have greatly underestimated the proper role of public relations in contemporary church life.

Consider these cases: Billy Graham would be practically unknown without his public relations staff. His major crusades in any large city means months of preparation that goes far beyond the renting of a stadium or the lease of a public auditorium. His first visits are with the local clergy, councils of churches and other supporting groups.

Choir must be rehearsed, ushers trained, counselors recruited, newsmen briefed and transportation arranged. Most major city campaigns require at least a year's preparations.

If the people are to get the message, you have to open all the channels of communication and public relations executives can save the day while Graham is saving the souls.

Another example. Last year New York's Bowery Mission had a New Year's Eve Party for the children who live in the surrounding tenements. The men who were being rehabilitated in this historic mission decorated the dining room, prepared refreshments, invited a rock 'n' roll band and opened their doors to 50 neighborhood youngsters who had the best party in New York.

This unusual story of former derelicts helping disadvantaged children would have quietly faded into history had not Sanford Teller, a New York public relations executive, alerted reporters, called the cameramen and provided background material on the work of the Bowery Mission. The result was coverage on WNBC and WABC radio and television, as well as national reporting through the major wire services.

Public relations is now the difference between awareness and ignorance. If the churches wish to reach the American public with a clear, uncluttered message, they will be greatly assisted by those who know the field of mass communication.

Three diverse points of view are right at the top on performance—Billy Graham, Fulton J. Sheen and the Mormon Church. Still trying to find the right breakthrough is the National Council of Churches. So far, the story is yet to be told. Extremists have too often put them on the defensive. When the council's activities are fully appreciated, it will gain many new friends.

Millionaires Get Tax Breaks, But Still Pay

By JOSEPH R. COYNE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—It takes a lot of capital gains and dividends to make a millionaire, the Internal Revenue Service can attest.

And although millionaires do get tax breaks, IRS records show they still pay a goodly share of their incomes in taxes.

The service said the average tax paid by 624 persons who made $1 million or more during 1965—the latest data available—was $966,838. Twenty-two other million-dollar earners paid no tax, however.

Although IRS is barred by law from revealing details of a person's tax return, officials said the millionaire who pays no tax can usually trace his good fortune to foreign tax credits and charitable or other large deductions.

Data compiled by IRS doesn't reflect the true picture of the millionaire, however, since interest from tax-free municipal bonds need not be reported as income.

IRS figures are also based on adjusted gross income—which doesn't show what depletion allowances may have been claimed for gas, oil or mineral holdings.

Most of the income of the 646 million-dollar earners in 1965 came from sales of capital assets—$845.1 million of the $1.4 billion they reported in total adjusted gross income. The adjusted gross averaged nearly $2.2 million each.

The second leading source was dividends at $483.3 million. Long-term capital gains are taxed at a maximum 25 per cent rate, thus giving not only millionaires but also other taxpayers a break if they hold their capital assets—such as stocks and bonds—more than six months. Even with this allowance, Mrs. Marie Peck of Arenzville, 1965's average million-dollar earner paid nearly 45 per cent of his adjusted gross income in taxes.

Dickson 'Diggings' Roll Back 28 Centuries Of State History

A summer of careful digging at Dickson Mounds, has rolled back some 28 centuries of Illinois history.

Archaeologists have found the remains of a civilization that existed at the site of the mounds about 700-900 B.C., thus antedating the mounds by some 2,000 years.

Dr. Joseph Caldwell, head curator of anthropology for the Illinois State Museum, said a village occupied the mound area between Havana and Lewistown and excavations have turned up a part of a wooden palisade beneath the mounds.

Also uncovered were storage and cooking pits, chipped stone artifacts and fragments of thin, grit-tempered pottery.

The story of the excavations, conducted by 10 archaeologists and 20 helpers, is in the October issue of the Living Museum, a monthly publication of the Illinois State Museum.

New, Larger Museum

The excavation began as a prelude to the building of a new and larger museum at the mounds. The park area covers more than 60 acres and includes a playground, picnic area with shade trees and tables, a shelter house and rest rooms.

A souvenir and snack shop is also provided.

Caldwell said the new "finds" in this latest excavation puts the Dickson Mounds in a new light and that perhaps the story is just beginning to unfold despite nearly a half-century of exploration.

The new park calls for the erection of an archaeological research center, exhibit galleries, an auditorium, restaurant and public facilities.

Also planned for the area is a program of orientation including exhibits relating to prehistoric cultures and the historic Indian tribes of Illinois to help visitors bridge the gap between the 20th century and the Mississippian Indians.

Relations of these early inhabitants of Fulton County with those of other villages and how they may have come under the cultural influence of the great town of Cahokia formerly near present East St. Louis, as indicated by unearthed pottery, is a challenging puzzle to archaeologists.

Beardstown to Peoria

These early Americans built a series of temple mounds along the Illinois River from present day Beardstown to Peoria. Seven to 10 miles apart, each temple mound evidently served the cluster of villages and hamlets within walking distance of it.

These communities strung along the river may have been part of a larger community that sometimes acted in concert.

Dickson Mounds got its name from a chiropractic graduate.

18-Mile Bridge To Span Snake-Infested Swamp

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The state Highway Department is putting together final plans for one of its most difficult construction jobs—bridging the snake-infested wilds of the Atchafalaya Swamp.

"It's a tremendous job," Acting State Highway Director A. B. Ratcliff said. "It's quite a challenge to me."

Highway engineers said the project will probably take more than five years. Contractors may find it tougher to build than the Lake Pontchartrain Causeway of New Orleans.

When completed, the bridge will stretch 18.3 miles across the muck and myriads of bayous making it perhaps the most important link in Louisiana's interstate highway system.

It will be part of a 52-mile stretch, tying in with a new interstate highway bridge across the Mississippi River at Baton Rouge.

Contractors will face a monumental task in moving construction equipment into the swamp. Ratcliff said contractors would have to bring in most of their heavy equipment by barge. Then they will have the problem of getting it into position for work on the bridge.

The decision to bridge the swamp was made after years of controversy with the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, which had insisted that an embankment be built.

"If we had tried to put up an embankment, the cost would have been terrific," Ratcliff said. Although embankments have been used in building highways through other swamps engineers determined the job of dredging the muck and filling it with sand in the Atchafalaya would be impractical.

"Besides, it would interfere with the floodway," an official said.

Even with the modern six-lane, twin-span structure, the cost will be high. For the 18.3-mile section, engineers figure it will cost about $75 million.

For the entire 52-mile route, the cost will exceed $100 million.

The U.S. Bureau of Public Roads recently approved an additional safety lane for each

Roberto Guevara Claims Guerrilla Not His Brother

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Roberto Guevara returned from Bolivia Saturday and said the guerrilla killed by the Bolivian army was not his brother Ernesto Che Guevara.

Roberto landed near Buenos Aires after a trip to Bolivia to try to identify the body of the guerrilla leader and bring it back to Argentina if it was his brother's.

The 36-year-old lawyer and his aging architect father, who met him at the airport, said they were convinced the Argentine-born former Cuban revolutionary leader had been falsely declared dead by the Bolivian authorities.

The father, Ernesto, had previously indicated he doubted that printed pictures of the guerrilla fighter shown in Vallegrande, Bolivia, were proof enough that the dead man was his 39-year-old son.

Roberto admitted he had not been shown the body or even one of its hands or fingers. He complained that Bolivian authorities had shown little interest in his quest to identify the body. He said they told him it had been cremated.

"It was all farcial, and I cannot understand it," he said.

He claimed that Bolivian army authorities told him at Vallegrande that they thought nobody was going to claim the body and ordered it cremated, "even though they knew I was in Bolivia by then."

"Everything was a substitution or a lie by the Bolivian government," Roberto said. "The pictures I saw showed a young man. My brother was nearly 40. There were other discrepancies."

Rights Trial

Only 18 of those indicted are on trial. The 19th, James E. Jordan, 41, a former Meridian resident and ex-Ku Klux Klan member, turned states evidence Thursday and told his story of how the three were slain.

Jordan has been under FBI protection in Georgia for almost two years. His case has been shifted to another federal court district.

Defendants include Neshoba County Sheriff Lawrence Rainey, 43, his chief deputy, Cecil Price, 28, sheriff-elect Ethel Glen "Hop" Barnett, 47, all of the Philadelphia area, and Sam H. Bowers Jr., 42, of Laurel. Bowers has been identified by the FBI as the imperial wizard of the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Judge Cox ended the rate Saturday session promptly at noon. Only character and alibi witnesses took the stand Saturday.

be taking philosophically the criticisms of his war policies that have grown in volume in recent weeks.

Republicans have contributed to this fresh flow of dissent, and Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., made it plain Saturday that as far as he is concerned the criticisms will continue.

Case challenged contentions of some Johnson supporters that dissent is solidifying Hanoi's resistance and hardening its refusal to negotiate. He said President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam is intelligent enough to know that "uninhibited free speech in this country is going to produce the best policy for America against him."

The New Jersey senator gave his view on a television-radio program taped for New York and Philadelphia stations.

Union

posed over bargaining at 9 p.m. last Tuesday.

There are guards on doors leading to the bargaining room at Ford headquarters and members of both negotiating teams are pledged not to discuss anything with reporters.

Ford, General Motors and Chrysler made the UAW virtually identical offers simultaneously on Aug. 29. There was angry rejection of them as "totally inadequate."

The union then made Ford the target for winning a contract which it will take later to the other members of the Big Three as a pattern for settlement with them.

Traditionally, the UAW struck only the target company. Its members are continuing to men assembly lines of Ford's competitors without contract protection.

Original offers of the Big Three included an immediate 13-cent hourly wage increase for all, something additional to be negotiated for skilled tradesmen, and 2.8-per cent pay increases in the second and third years of a three-year contract.

They also proposed to put a maximum of 12 cents hourly on the height to which a cost-of-living escalator could carry wages over the three-year span.

Pay rose 18 cents via the escalator in the three-year contracts which expired Sept. 6, and UAW President Walter P. Reuther has asserted there can be "absolutely no tampering" with the formula.

The proposals ignored the UAW's No. 1 demand—a guaranteed annual income.

MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED FOR WEEK

Marriage licenses issued for the past week from the office of the county clerk were: James A. McBride of 1248 South East and Nancy Jo Davis of 128 Pine; Patrick H. Cray of Route 2, Waverly, and Katherine Ann Bilski of Route 1, Waverly.

Match Rebel's Fingerprints, Prove Che Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials were reported Saturday to have received what they consider positive proof that the Bolivians are correct in their claim to have slain guerrilla leader Ernesto Che Guevara.

The Bolivian army originally announced that the will-o-the-wisp insurrectionist was shot in a clash with soldiers last Sunday. Washington spokesmen said then they were inclined to believe the Bolivian government reports. But recent La Paz dispatches have tended to throw some mystery over the affair.

A small group of U.S. specialists have been training Bolivian forces in anti-guerrilla operations and were reported in La Paz to have been in a position to make an independent certification of the Bolivian claim.

It was understood that the results, including fingerprint identification, have arrived in Washington and that responsible U.S. authorities now are fully satisfied the body shown by the Bolivians was that of the Argentine-born Guevara who once was a top deputy to Cuba's Fidel Castro.

Known Guevara fingerprints for cross-checking against those from the body were said to have been available from a number of files including some from Argentina, Chile and Mexico.

And although the body was reported cremated, Bolivian officials said the fingers were kept for any further identification needs.

The La Paz government's version is that Guevara died of wounds from Sunday's battle in the wild Andean foothills about 300 miles southeast of the Bolivian capital. Newsmen were taken to Vallegrande to view the body, and observers said it bore a strong resemblance to Guevara.

However some questions have arisen because the body was not brought to La Paz but was cremated rather suddenly without prior announcement. And there have been conflicting accounts of the manner of his death.

U.S. observers are inclined to attribute Bolivian procedures to the pressures immediately faced by officials there rather than to any effort to cover up.

Truckers' Strike

(Continued from Page One) would not resume negotiations with the panel. He commented after truckers in Pittsburgh approved 437-134 the original pact offering a five-point program to end the walkout.

"The fact that we approved this today doesn't mean we're going back to work today," said Berger.

And the head of the National Steel Carriers said it was illegal for trucking companies to negotiate on the wait-time issue.

Berger said all parties must approve the agreement before trucks roll again.

Transfer Man Held In Slaying Of Ind. Sheriff

WINAMAC, Ind. (AP) — Arthur J. Lewis, 29, of Gary, was transferred to the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City Saturday to await investigation of a charge that he killed a sheriff during a jailbreak last week.

Lewis was arraigned in Pulaski Circuit Court on a preliminary charge of first degree murder in the fatal shooting of Sheriff Milo Lewis, 50, last Wednesday.

Judge Robert E. Thompson remanded Lewis to the custody of the prison warden to await a grand jury investigation, scheduled to begin Monday.

Lewis was quietly transported to Winamac for the arrangement from South Bend, where federal, state and local authorities cornered him in a house to climax a three-day search.

Funeral services for Sheriff Lewis were scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at Monterey.

Administration

Calling for a return to "fiscal integrity," Romney said the administration "has let the deficit get completely out of control."

"It projected a nearly balanced budget for fiscal 1967," he said, "but ended up with a deficit of almost $10 billion. This year it's even worse."

"By consistently underestimating the costs of Vietnam, the administration has short-circuited demands for cuts in domestic spending," he added.

"The administration's refusal to level with Congress and the people has played havoc with any attempt to chart national fiscal policy on a sound basis."

Romney charged that "Johnson economics have produced a slowdown in this nation's economic growth," adding that in the first half of this year the Gross National Product is growing at an annual rate of only 1.1 per cent.

In addition, he said, industrial production, new construction starts, home building, farm proprietors' income and real weekly wages in manufacturing have gone down while interest rates and consumer prices have risen.

The administration also has failed to deal with collective bargaining monopolies, Romney charged.

"The Johnson administration is taking us straight down the road to economic catastrophe and absolutism—frozen wages, frozen prices, the destruction of free collective bargaining and a free competitive economy," Romney added.

The only new report of ground action came from American infantrymen in a sweep 22 miles northwest of Saigon. Units of the Army's 25th Infantry Division fought for 3½ hours with an enemy force of unknown size and claimed 14 Viet Cong were killed. American casualties were set at six killed and six wounded.

Saturday's battle just south of the DMZ repulsed the latest enemy thrust in the embattled area.

Fighting by the light of parachute flares, a Marine battalion encamped 1.2 miles south of Con Thien's shell-pocked hills hurled back about 500 Hanoi regulars in a three-hour battle before dawn Saturday.

Spokesmen said the North Vietnamese struck behind a screen of tear gas and smoke grenades after lobbing in 130 mortar shells. In retreat they headed toward the mountains southwest of Con Thien with Marines in pursuit.

Several Americans were killed in the battle and 48 were wounded seriously enough to require helicopter evacuation for treatment. An undetermined number of others remained in the line with lesser wounds.

Twelve enemy bodies were found on the field, along with 10 weapons and seven gas masks. There was no estimate of how many North Vietnamese dead and injured may have been carried away.

The enemy probe developed after a sharp increase Friday in the enemy's long-range shelling of Con Thien, two miles south of the demilitarized zone. Compared to recent daily totals of 30 or 40 rounds, 384 rounds of artillery, rocket and mortar fire whistled in.

The shelling killed three Marines and wounded 15.

REMOVE DAMAGED HAIRS

If your hairdo has broken down (broken ends that is), now's the time to solve the problem. The possible causes of split ends are many. For example, they can be caused by improper brushing, over-bleaching, overly tight settings and even clips or rollers that have rough edges. To start, have your hairdresser give you a trim in which all damaged hairs are removed. If you can, decide what has been causing your hair to split and begin a special hair-care routine.

Highway Plans Reviewed For Ashland Board

ASHLAND — Proposed improvements to Illinois Route 125, which have been pending for several years, were reviewed at a recent meeting of the Ashland Village Board.

Mayor Evans reported that he had discussed the matter with representatives of the state highway department but added that no definite plans have been made.

He said that if the new section of highway by-passes Ashland, construction will begin east of the Texaco station pass to the north of the high school grounds and rejoin the existing highway between the Richard Thornley and Zeta Burns Devlin homes. If the highway is left as it is now, the roadway will be widened to 10 feet and curbs and gutter will be installed.

A public hearing will be held in the near future.

Also under discussion at the meeting was the vandalism of picnic tables installed at James Park. It was reported that one of the new tables placed in the park during the summer had been dented, broken and covered with carved initials. Board

White glads mums and palms were used at the candle-lit altar of Grace Methodist church for the ceremony last Sunday afternoon in which Miss Linda Sue Reeve became the bride of John Riley Saxer. The Reverend Floy Eken performed the ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Mrs. G. O. Webster was at the organ for the nuptial prelude. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jay Reeve, 680 South Prairie street. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Saxer, Jacksonville route two.

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. David Reeve of Havana, was matron of honor. Mrs. Gerald Sample of Chatham and Mrs. Carol DeGroot of this city were bridesmaids and Miss Becky Sanders was bridesmaid. Little Kellie Reeve, niece of the bride, was flowergirl and Jody Alderman was the ring bearer.

Carol DeGroot was best man and groomsmen were Robert Dumire, William Saxer of Tulon, brother of the groom and David Reeve, Havana, brother of the bride.

Ushers were Howard McNier, Springfield, a cousin of the bride and Charles Saxer of Murrayville, cousin of the groom.

The bride wore a delustered double satin gown which fell en-train. Chantilly lace was used on the bodice, sleeves and the skirt. A pill box headdress of satin held her Cathedral length mantilla veil of Alencon lace. She carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and ivy centering a purple throated white orchid.

The bride's attendants were gowned alike in empire dresses, full length in moss green sate cloth with matching velvet trim. Velvet leaf headdresses with veils falling floor length at the back completed their costumes. Each carried a large bouquet of deep pink roses.

The little flower girl wore a full length dress of pink crepe and carried a white basket of rose petals. The ringbearer was in a white coat and dark trousers and carried the double rings on a satin pillow.

Dennis Reeve, brother of the bride, lighted tapers at the altar during the prelude.

The mother of the bride wore a shaded apricot cage dress of crepe and chiffon with brown accessories. Her flowers were gardenias. The groom's mother chose a blue suit with corresponding color accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

At the reception held at the Holiday Inn, antique crystal, which had belonged to the great grandmother of the bride, was used in appointments at the serving table. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. George McNier, Mrs. Hugh Skinner, Mrs. Charles Saxer, Mrs. William Clancy, Mrs. Carol Clark, Mrs. John Kelly, Mrs. William Degitz and the Misses Dianne Abel, Cheri Prindle and Cathy Craddock.

The couple will reside in White Hall upon return from a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination.

The bride graduated from Jacksonville High School in 1964 and the groom in 1962. She attended Illinois College and is employed in the IBM Division at the New Method Book Bindery. The groom spent four years in the Marine Corps with duty in Vietnam. He is an apprentice plumber for a local contractor.

Among the special guests at the wedding were the paternal grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Bernice Reeve and the maternal grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Beulah Ledford.

Other guests attended from Peoria, Lincoln, Springfield, East Alton, Murrayville, Winchester, Bloomington, Versailles, Pittsfield, Ill.; St. Louis, Missouri and San Bruno, California.

Beauty Care Today

By MID

Ever wonder why most parties are at night? It seems like that's the time a woman's face is beginning to look a little tired after working all day.

Is there a way to pick up a weary face?

Facial masks are the answer! They add a fresh pink glow to your complexion. Facial circulation is stimulated. Facial oil-ness is checked.

Some masks work in five minutes. Some take twenty minutes and others as long as thirty. Choose the one that appeals to you most and ask your beautician.

A good guide for selection is to pick the mask that fits your skin type. Most are labeled with specific recommendations for each skin type. They are made for oily, dry, normal and disturbed skin.

Suggestion: A big smile at the party will help cover up the fact that you may be tired.

Certain members of the bridge press seem to delight in pillorying American players in international and other important matches. The stronger the screams of anguish by these writers, the less likely that the particular writer ever played internationally or ever will play internationally. We have played in such matches before and hope to do so again and know that when we do we will make mistakes ranging from errors in judgment to downright stupidities.

The bidding in the box shows the American team getting to a ridiculous slam. We blame North for this but have no intention of mentioning which one of the six players actually made this bad bid.

We would never make the bid sitting at home and looking at the South hand. We probably would not have made it at the table, but we have done worse in the past and will probably commit other crimes in the future.

Anyway, North did bid four clubs after his partner had signed off at three no-trump and compounded his error by going on to six after his partner merely bid game.

South won the spade opening with dummy's ace, entered his hand with a trump and led his singleton diamond. West played low but eventually South had to lose three tricks.

At the other table the Italians stopped at three no-trump.

A spade was opened and Benito Garozzo, the declarer, settled for his nine top tricks. Because West held the ace of diamonds he could have made a 10th but he was not going to risk his good contract.

A—Bid three diamonds. You don't really expect your partner to be able to go further but if he can't make three diamonds the opponents can make several spades.

Your partner continues to three no-trump. What do you do now?

BRIMFUL

and running over

By Jim Brim

There are more than 80 diseases that can be transmitted from animal to man. As we have developed drugs, vaccines, etc., we have become at times rather complacent in our war on disease.

Here are some comments about five diseases that can be transmitted to man. They are the more important ones.

BRUCELLOSIS — Known as undulant fever in humans. Symptoms are sudden chills, headache, sweating, fever, backache, weakness and fatigue. Early treatment is necessary to prevent chronic effects that may arise in later life.

Best prevention is to eliminate the disease from cattle and hogs. Blood test and sell reactors for slaughter. Pasteurize all milk.

LEPTOSPIROSIS — Symptoms are "flu-like," with fever, headache, chills, vomiting, muscular aches and pains, stiff neck, weakness and sometimes meningitis.

Wear protective clothing when handling sick animals. Cattle, hogs and dogs may be vaccinated against it.

RABIES — Affects any warm blooded animal and it can be gotten through being bitten by a warm blooded animal.

Symptoms vary widely, once the disease develops in man death follows.

Therefore, prevention is a must. Vaccinate dogs, cats and pets. Control stray animals. Check with your physician about a pre-exposure vaccine if you have a high risk of exposure to rabid animals. By all means see him if you are bitten, but first wash the wound thoroughly with soap and water.

TETANUS — Also called lock-jaw. The bacteria enters the body through a wound. Clean all wounds thoroughly and remove foreign matter. Vaccination with periodic booster shots is the best prevention.

SALMONELLOSIS — Symptoms come on suddenly — diarrhea, cramps, abdominal pain, vomiting, fever.

On the increase across the country, prevention is accomplished by thorough cooking of foodstuffs, especially fowl and meat dishes. Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold.

In the control of all the diseases in livestock and in humans your best friends are your family physician and your veterinarian. Consult with them about suspicious situations.

Now you should . . .

... Read Mathew 6:30.

... Check the pond dam.

... Shiver.

... Dry corn.

... Crack walnuts.

... Be sure your windshield and rear window are clear of all frost before starting out in the morning.

Operate your combine or picker in a safe, efficient fashion. Yes, speed is important to get the crop out but too much leaves a lot of the crop in the field and this is a loss. Do a thorough job and the income increases.

A person will fight many times harder for special privileges than he will for equal rights.

SCHUYLER-BROWN HISTORICAL TOUR TO BE SUNDAY

RUSHVILLE — The Schuyler-Brown Historical tour planned for Sunday, Oct. 15 will begin at 1:30 p.m. at the intersection of Route 67 and the Camden Road. At this point the story of the old Clark Mill will be told.

A short stop will be made to hear about the Protestant Church. The caravan will then proceed to Erwin and turn south at the top of the hill where the story of the pilgrim preachers, Rayburn and Obenshain, will be told.

The sites of Mabel Store and the post office will be pointed out and their story told.

At a point west of Brooklyn the story of early Mormon settlers will be related.

The last point of interest will be the grave of Azel Dorsey, ontime schoolteacher of Abraham Lincoln. The grave is located on the Theodore King farm south of Huntsville.

All interested persons are invited to make the tour. There will be no admission charge.

United Fund Report Hits $108,000 Mark

Pledges and contributions to the United Fund of Morgan County now total $108,086—with the $11,914 balance toward the 1967-68 goal of $120,000 expected to be raised by the extended deadline of October 20, according to co-chairmen Ralph Troyer and Gilbert Todd.

Five of the ten campaign divisions have exceeded their divisional goals. They are: I. Finance, IV. County, V. Government, VI. Professions, and VIII. Miscellaneous. The other divisions, in the current order of percentage towards 100% of their goals, are: II. Key Employers, III. Education, X. Construction, IX. State Institutions, and VII. Business.

This year's United Fund campaign is now at the highest amount ever raised during the first four weeks. The funds are used for the essential support of 11 health, service, youth, and charitable agencies.

Local Man Hurt In Truck Crash

Richard L. Pessina, 29, of 414 North Laurel Drive was admitted to Holy Cross hospital following an accident about 9:30 a.m. Friday on the Hillview blacktop, five miles south of Routes 36-54 in Scott county.

Pessina was reported in satisfactory condition. State police said he was southbound in a dump truck and lost control on the wet pavement. The truck struck a bridge, causing damage to the vehicle and the bridge.

Eric L. Lakin, 17, of Murrayville was ticketed following an accident about noon Friday at the north edge of Manchester on State Route 267.

Lakin was cited for failure to reduce speed after his northbound truck struck the rear of a truck driven by William Wright of Route one, Roodhouse.

Wright was slowing to make a turn onto the Alsey blacktop. Lakin's truck was towed away.

Another accident two miles south of Waverly on Route 111 caused damage to the pickup truck involved. State police said 30-year-old James R. Lovelace of Palmyra lost control of his truck after hitting a puddle of water on the highway. The truck overturned on its side in a ditch. Lovelace complained of minor injuries but did not seek immediate treatment.

His truck was towed from the scene.

A GREAT YEAR TO REMEMBER

The just ended Major League baseball season, a strange one for most fans, was a great one for most fans in this area. With most baseball followers in the area following either St. Louis or Chicago, they certainly had a lot to cheer for.

When fans look back on the 1967 season several years from now, there will be a lot to remember. There was the complete fold of last year's champions, Baltimore and Los Angeles. The Dodgers' fadeout was expected, the Orioles' was not.

Then there was the climb from ninth to first by Boston, St. Louis' jump from the second division to the World Championship. Chicago skyrocketed from tenth to third; Pittsburgh was a total disappointment after being picked by most experts to win all the marbles.

WE ARE going to remember those things, but we are going to have a lot of other memories of the season as well. This season was this writer's first for covering Major League games, the first for personal interviews with most of the world's best baseball players.

We will remember:

—The great spirit of the champion Cardinals. They reminded us a lot of gung-ho high school and college players. You would never know they were seasoned veterans. After a crucial loss, and there weren't many, there was no bickering, shunning of the writers. They set their teeth and seemed like they couldn't wait to get on the field the next night.

—THE GREAT Chicago Cubs star Ernie Banks giving us about 45 minutes of his time before a game in St. Louis, a game that could have put the Cubs one game out of the lead. He was so relaxed he passed up batting practice to tell us what Major League baseball had meant to him. Then, talking about his new Ford agency in Chicago, he gave us a sales pitch on a new Ford.

—Interviewing Cincinnati's Pete Rose. Known as 'Mister Hustle', we could see how he got that name. He would answer a couple of questions outside the batting cage, then quickly sprint around the bases. You couldn't stand closer than five feet to him, because he was continually taking practice cuts with his bat.

—HEARING RED Schoendienst talk about the many happy days he has spent hunting and fishing in Central Illinois, and wishing he had the time to do it again. "I'm pretty tired up most of the time anymore," said Schoendienst. Wrapped up in a hot pennant race at the time and noticeably more than a little worried, Schoendienst perked up and forgot all about the rigors of baseball when hunting and fishing were mentioned.

—Listening to Roger Maris tell how much he greatly appreciated the treatment he received from the fans and press in St. Louis. One could tell he was still a bit wary of talking to the writers, but ask no leading questions and he was as friendly as they come. You can bet he will have a bit of the bad taste of the treatment he received from the press in New York for a long time.

—LISTENING to Orlando Cepeda chatter on and on as long as someone would listen, mostly about how great his teammates were and how terrific the fans in St. Louis were. A high-spirited individual, Orlando would lose most of his listeners when he got excited and started mixing his English and Spanish in speech so rapid it was quite hard to follow. He was one of the biggest laugh-getters in the league, and when he was going good, the most exciting hitter we have ever seen.

—Cepeda's various versions of his exchange with umpire Stan Landis the night the first baseman was not only kicked out of the game, but fined and suspended for two days as well. For every night the next couple of weeks Cepeda would have a different version of what he said to Landis, each one hilarious. It would take several rulings by the Supreme Court to ever put any of them in print.

—SEEING ROOKIE pitcher Dick Hughes sit in the dugout every night before a game looking over the Stadium and the crowd. Hughes, who spent nine years in the minors before making the grade at the age of 29, was obviously awestruck by the scene. Hughes, who rates at the top of the league in the size of his chaw of tobacco, declared several times, "This is great. I'm going to be here for a long time."

—Watching Curt Flood going after everything hit past the infield, and getting most of them. If he isn't the best in the game now, we would like to see who is. Talking to Flood was just as much a pleasure. A finer gentleman we did not meet. Yes, we heard all those 'stories' making the rounds during the season, and didn't believe a one.

—TALKING TO Leo Durocher, and actually feeling the personal magnetism he exerts. This 'Durocher magic' was what the Cub players credited with their climb to the first division this year. And, listening to Durocher disclaim any contribution by him. "It was just a matter of getting the team to quit being satisfied with losing," said Durocher.

—Interviewing the great Willie Mays the day after he did not make the starting lineup for the all-star game for the first time in many years. Willie, who still has the voice of a youngster and quite often bounces around like one, was noticeably disturbed over the matter, but being the great star he is, denied he was bitter and stated that he perhaps did not deserve to start.

—LISTENING to the father-like manner of Atlanta manager Billy Hitchcock, one of our favorites. The item we remember most was Hitchcock's reply to what he thought of Pittsburgh manager Harry Walker being fired. "Baseball is a funny game. You do your best and sometimes it doesn't seem right. You just have to do what you think is best and hope it works out right." Think he knew something?

—Seeing Walter Alston walk into a room or onto the field and knowing why he is held in such high esteem by all of baseball. We have never seen a man more in command, and yet seldom say a word. You could pick him out of a crowd of 50 as being a Major League manager.

—COVERING the World Series. The field and clubhouse were an unbelievable madhouse of writers and photographers, about 600 as compared to 50 ball players. We couldn't help but feel a bit sorry for such players as Jim Lonborg and Carl Yastrzemski, who could not even shave without answering a barrage of questions, most of them repeats, from the always-present crowd around them.

—Watching Lou Brock dominate the Series like no other non-pitcher has in our memory. He is the most exciting ball player we have yet to see play the game.

CLOSE DEFENDING of Pat Fischer, top right, of St. Louis, doesn't prevent Homer Jones from wrapping sinewy fingers around a forward pass. And once the ball's securely in the grasp of the New York Giant split end, he runs away from defenders with an elusiveness that has made him the biggest long distance threat in pro football.

Blueboys Fall, 21-7

CHICAGO — Halfback Don Gotkowski paced a ball-controlling University of Illinois Chicago Circle team to a 21-7 victory over Illinois College, here Saturday evening.

Gotkowski scored a pair of touchdowns and ground out 190 yards on 27 carries, 153 yards on 20 carries in the first half when the Chicago Illini ran up a 15-0 margin.

The Illini rolled up 254 yards on the ground and controlled the ball for 88 plays, as compared to 119 rushing yards and 60 offensive plays for the losing Blueboys.

Gotkowski got the winners off and running with a one-yard score in the first period, capping a nine-play, 54-yard march. Jim McNellis tackled IC's Tom Rowland, who intercepted a Chicago pass and ran into the end zone, in the end zone for a safety in the second period. With 3:56 left in the first half Gotkowski scored again, on a two-yard plunge to end a 57-yard drive that took up nine plays. Carl Carbone booted the point after.

Carbone legged the ball over from two yards away in the third frame, to finish a 58-yard nine-play march.

Illinois College scored with only 20 seconds left in the game with Danny Brooks sneaking across from one yard away. The score capped an 80-yard march that took ten plays. The drive was highlighted by Oscar Young's 47-yard pass to Rowland, moving the ball to the one.

Rowland intercepted three Chicago passes, including one with only five seconds to play. Rowland also returned a punt 48 yards to the Chicago 24 in the final period but IC was unable to score.

Chicago is now 2-2 for the season, while IC stands 0-2-1. Score by quarters: Chicago, Circle 7 8 6 0—21 Illinois College 0 0 0 7—7

Purdue, Phipps Bury Bucks, 41-6

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mike Phipps, sophomore quarterback, rattled Ohio State with his passes and his runs Saturday as Purdue's No. 2 rated Boilermakers romped to an amazingly easy 41-6 victory over the Buckeyes.

The unbeaten Boilermakers piled up a 35-0 lead by half-time and second and third stringers played most of the final two periods. Phipps sat out most of the last half.

Ohio State never got beyond Purdue's 33-yard line until the waning minutes of the last quarter when they scored against Purdue reserves. The touchdown came on a 10-yard pass from substitute quarterback Kevin Ruskak to end Bill Anders.

Phipps passed for two touchdowns and his runs on passing plays added up long yardage. At one point in the first half, he completed nine passes in a row for 142 yards and the two touchdowns.

Purdue broke the game open in a hurry and without ever having the ball for an offensive play. Dennis Cirbes intercepted a Jerry Ehrsam pass on the Ohio State 30 shortly after the opening kickoff and walked a tightrope down the sidelines for a touchdown.

Williams got the final Purdue touchdown in the third quarter on a smash from seven yards out. It was the Bucks' worst defeat since 1953 when Illinois marked up 41 points against them. Purdue 14 21 6 0-41 Ohio State 0 0 0 0—6

Warriors Gain Tie For Third In League Meet

ST. LOUIS — Fred Jenkins personally picked up 11 points to allow a tie for third place by IBSSS in the North Central Association Schools for the Blind conference track meet, here Saturday.

Michigan won the 17-team meet with 24½ points. Following in order were Wisconsin 16, Illinois and Indiana 15, Nebraska nine, Iowa 5½, Missouri and Kentucky five, Kansas four and Ohio none. Two teams did not attend the meet.

Jenkins captured the local squad's only first of the meet, with a leap of 9'2½" in the standing broad jump. Jenkins also took seconds in the three consecutive jumps and the 75-yard dash.

Usual high scorer Tom Cravens was limited to two points, suffering a back injury. Cravens took third in three consecutive jumps.

Steve Brewster garnered the Warriors' final two points with fourths in the high jump and the hop, step and jump.

IBSSS, which did not win a point at the conference meet last year, finished the regular season with a perfect 4-0 record.

Softball Meet Here Tuesday

All representatives of local and area softball teams (fast-pitch and slo-pitch) are encouraged to attend a long range planning meeting at the YMCA on Tuesday, Oct. 17, at 8:00 p.m.

Don Hardesty, Associate Executive, stated that the new Sherwood Eddy Memorial YMCA will have two excellent softball fields and one baseball field which can be converted to softball, and that potential league information is needed now for preparing next summer's schedule.

Hardesty stated that representatives will not be committing their teams, but that the interest will determine the reservation of playing nights for various leagues.

Principia Wins Cross Country Meet At Mac

Principia ran away with team honors in a triangular cross country meet held over MacMurray's four-mile course Saturday. Prin. finding its first cross country team, piled up 27 points, followed by Greenville with 52 and MacMurray with 63.

Bob Steelsmith of Principia gained individual honors with a timing of 21:02, followed by MacMurray's 21:28. Other MacMurray runners were Jim Samuel, sixth in 22:07; Rich Firebaugh, 13th in 23:11; Vince Prieto, 15th in 23:31 and Jim Weber, 20th in 24:40.

Griffin Sophs Edge Jacks, 6-2

SPRINGFIELD — The Springfield Griffin sophomore football squad made a nine-yard run by Metzler in the second period stand up, here Saturday morning, for a 6-2 victory over the Jacksonville sophs.

Defenses dominated the game, played on a quite muddy field. JHS' Randy Headen scored in the first period only to have it called back.

Bob Chipman nabbed the Griffin quarterback in the end zone in the third period for Jacksonville's only two points.

Chipman was the losers' standout on defense and offense, catching three passes from quarterback Rick Hatcher for 29 yards. Headen piled up 100 yards rushing. The Crimson were playing without regular quarterback Steve Waltrip, who suffered a broken leg in practice the past week.

Griffin stands 1-1-1, while Jacksonville now owns a 2-3 slate. Score by quarters: Griffin 0 6 0 0—6 Jacksonville 0 0 2 0—2

Raye Leads MSU To 34-0 Runaway Over Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Jimmy Raye, Michigan State's small and shifty senior quarterback, led the Spartans to a crushing 34-0 victory over Michigan Saturday before a capacity crowd of 103,210, largest of the 1967 football season.

The victory, Michigan State's second in Big Ten play, raised Spartan hopes for the successful defense of its conference title and another trip to the Rose Bowl.

Raye scored State's first touchdown on a two-yard sneak in the first period, its second on a similar plunge in the second period, and then in an explosive two minutes before the first half ended, he passed 65 yards to Allen Brenner for a score, and following an interception, passed eight yards to Franklin Foreman in the end zone to make it 27-0.

Ole Miss Rips Georgia, 29-20

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Sophomore tailback Bo Bowen slashed through Georgia's vaunted defense for two touchdowns Saturday night as fired-up Mississippi upset the third-ranked Bulldogs 29-20 in a Southeastern Conference football game.

The Rebels drove 49 and 58 yards for touchdowns and added two more after a 69-yard punt return and a pass interception.

Georgia, which drove 66 yards for a touchdown on its first series of plays, seemed in command until halfback Tommy James of Ole Miss returned a Bulldog punt from his 27 to the Georgia four-yard line. The speedy Bowen slashed over tackle for a touchdown on the next play.

On Cardinals

Few Changes Likely

Changes In Order For Series Losers

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox may be American League champions, but they still face plenty of question marks and glaring weaknesses as they look ahead to 1968.

Somehow the Red Sox scrambled to the 1967 pennant despite serious problems in pitching and catching, plus the lack of a solid right fielder for the last six weeks.

The Red Sox had youth on their side, and they will again next season, but even the most optimistic fans doubt that the club can repeat unless it shores up some of its obvious deficiencies.

However, after two straight bumper crops of rookies — George Scott, Joe Foy, Reggie Smith and Mike Andrews among others — they may find the cupboard bare if they try to dip once again into their farm system for the help they need.

Trades seem the obvious answer, and the club will undoubtedly be looking — especially for a catcher and at least one more starting pitcher.

Pitching Weakness Pitching was supposed to be Boston's weakness this year, and despite the club's overall success it still ranks as a major problem for 1968. The only season-long reliable starter was 22-game winner Jim Lonborg, with Gary Bell and Jose Santiago heading a host of others who moved in and out of the rotation at various times.

Discounting any possible trades, these three loom as next season's nucleus, with a large group of holdovers and rookies battling for the other spots. One youngster certain to get a long look in spring training is 19-year-old left-hander Ken Brett, who impressed in one last-season performance and in two World Series relief efforts.

Catching was another year-long problem which finally led to the late-season acquisition of Elston Howard. The aging former New York Yankee star helped settle down the pitching, but he hit even less than the other Boston receivers and at 38 there is some question whether he'll return.

The team is pretty well set everywhere else with solid young players and capable reserves — which is the main reason it would up in first place and extended the favored St. Louis Cardinals to seven games before losing the World Series. But even here there are problems.

The biggest question mark of all is the physical condition of Tony Conigliaro, the slugging young outfielder who was sidelined for the year when hit in the head by a pitch Aug. 18. Blurred vision prevented his return to the line-up, and it still hadn't cleared up by the end of the season although doctors have given assurance that the condition is not permanent.

Without Tony C., who hit 20 home runs and drove in 67 runs in his abbreviated season, the Red Sox lacked a solid cleanup hitter as well as a regular right fielder. Until they can be sure of his return, therefore, club officials are in a quandary trade-wise since they don't know who is expendable.

If Conigliaro does recover, he'll rejoin Carl Yastrzemski and Smith in one of baseball's best outfielders, backed up by veterans Jose Tartabull and George Thomas and late-season acquisition Ken Harrelson.

The infield also appears set with Scott at first base, Andrews at second, Rico Petrocelli at shortstop, either Foy or Dalton Jones at third, and veteran handyman Jerry Adair wherever he is needed.

Battle At Third The strong-hitting but weak-fielding Jones was Boston's second best hitter in the series and voiced anger when he was benched in favor of Foy for the last two games. Those two appear destined to battle again for the regular job next spring unless one is traded.

Another possibility here is that the versatile Scott may be tried at third while Harrelson is given a shot at his normal first-base position.

In any event it seems a sure bet that the Red Sox will try to swing some deals involving such players as Jones, Foy, Harrelson or others in hopes of plugging those big pitching and catching gaps.

Mac Blanks Washington

Second-half goals by Tom Burden and Chris DiMeglio broke up a defensive battle and lifted MacMurray to a 2-0 shut-out victory over Washington University of St. Louis, before a Founders Day crowd at MacMurray Saturday afternoon.

After a scoreless first half, Burden slammed in a goal from 20 yards out, after only 1:17 of the third quarter. DiMeglio wrapped up the victory with a left-footer with only a minute and a half to play in the final period.

Halfback Russ Milby, who initiated all of MacMurray's offensive attacks, and goalie Ted Dilday, credited with six goal saves, were outstanding for the winning Highlanders.

MacMurray also dominated the statistics department, getting off 32 shots on goal to only ten by the losing Bears. The Clan led in corner kicks, 6-4. The victory boosts MacMurray to a 3-2 record, while Washington is now 1-1-1.

Score by quarters: MacMurray 0 0 1 1—2 Washington U. 0 0 0 0—0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — World champions aren't supposed to stand pat, but what changes can you make on a solidly balanced, relatively young club?

Not too many. Red Schoendienst, manager of the newly-crowned St. Louis Cardinals, says some changes might be made, "but they'll be for the good of the club. We won't get rid of a man, or make a move just to make a move."

He isn't worried about the club collapsing as the 1966 Los Angeles Dodgers and World Champion Baltimore Orioles did this year.

The obvious question about the Cardinals is right field. Roger Maris said when he was traded from the New York Yankees to the Cardinals last winter this might be his last year. But Schoendienst thinks Maris, 33, will be back.

Red said talking over Maris' plans will be General Manager Stan Musial's job. Schoendienst hasn't talked with Maris specifically about next year, "but the way he's talked, I think he'll be back. It'll depend on how hard he feels it will be to get in shape, but he liked it here."

Trio Of Possible

If Maris doesn't like it enough to return, Alex Johnson, Ed Spezio and Phil Gagliano will probably fight it out for the job. Johnson only hit .223 this year, but the Cardinals feel he has the potential to be a good hitter. He's also one of the fastest men on an already fast team.

The rest of the outfield appears set for quite a few years. Curt Flood, 30, is an unrivaled defensive center fielder. His .335 average led the club.

For reserve strength, there's young Bobby Tolan, 22, who batted .253 in his first full year with the Redbirds. He is the same sort of ballplayer as Flood, good defensively with a good bat and occasional power.

Nobody is likely to oust Lou Brock from left field. The 28-year-old Brock could be the best all-around ballplayer in baseball. He has developed into an outstanding defensive star with an impressive arm. On the bases he is incomparable. He led the league with 52 stolen bases. And he had his best year with a bat, hitting .299 with a career high of 21 homers and 76 runs batted in.

Infield Solid Too The Cardinal infield is just as solid. First baseman Orlando Cepeda, a strong candidate for most Valuable Player in the National League, is 30 and his .325 average and 111 RBIs indicate his knee troubles of two years ago are over.

Mike Shannon has satisfied Schoendienst with his switch to third base from the outfield. Mike hit only .245, but Schoendienst says, "Mike has come up with some big hits." Shannon, 28, has the reflexes to handle the wicked shot that zoom at third, though he sometimes lets the soft ones handoff him.

Second baseman Julian Javier is 31, but no other second baseman in the league can rival him for range. He came back from two off years to hit .281 this year.

Glove Keeps Maxvill The lightest hitter among the infielders is shortstop Dal Maxvill. The 29-year-old Maxvill hit only .227 this year, but because of his fielding ability no one is likely to beat him out at shortstop.

And Tim McCarver, 26, is regarded by many as the best all-around catcher in the game today. His backup is Dave Ricketts, 32, who hit .273 as the Cardinals' top pinch hitter.

If anyone is going to break into the line-up it probably will be Mike Torrez, a 6-foot-6 right-hander, who spent the year at Tulsa. He lost his only start at the end of the year with the Cardinals, but Schoendienst thinks Torrez, 21, is a sure bet.

There is a possibility three veterans may not return. Infielder Ed Bressoud indicated he was retiring from baseball to teach in the upper-California area. Catcher John Romano, who was cut from the Cardinals' World Series roster, and relief pitcher Hal Woodeshick may not be back.

Hoosiers Capture 4th Straight 21-17

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana's sophomore aerial combination, Harry Gonso to Jade Butcher, produced two touchdowns, the last with only 53 seconds to play, and the Hoosiers beat Iowa 21-17 Saturday for their fourth straight victory.

Jim Lemon New Pilot Of Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ganging Jim Lemon an awesome home-run hitter in the late 1950s, was named manager of the Washington Senators Saturday. He replaces Gil Hodges who is going to the New York Mets.

Lemon signed a two-year contract and although terms were not announced, he is believed to have received about $28,000 per year.

"It was a surprise to me when George called," Lemon told a news conference, referring to General Manager George Selkirk.

"I had been watching the Hodges story in the paper and if I had not been contacted, I would have thrown my hat in the ring."

"If you want something, you have to try to go and get it."

Lemon, a coach for the Minnesota Twins the past three years, was a popular player in Washington from 1954 to 1960, before the Senators moved to Minnesota. He still makes his home in the area and runs a small grocery store in the Maryland suburb of Hyattsville.

Team Finished Last
Lemon, 39, managed the Senators' York farm club in the Class AA Eastern League in 1964 before accepting Calvin Griffith's offer to be the first base coach for the Minnesota Twins. His York team finished last.

Hodges quit Wednesday to sign a contract with the Mets after managing Washington 4½ years and taking the last-place Senators to a sixth-place tie with the Baltimore Orioles this season.

Selkirk, who earlier this week said he would announce his new manager after the American League meeting Oct. 18, called a news conference Saturday to end speculation.

"We've been prepared for this," said Selkirk, referring to Hodges' departure. "I've had a man in mind for the past three years." Lemon said he has not decided who will be his coaches but he has asked Ed Yost, a former Senators' teammate, to stay on as his third base coach. He said Yost has not given him a decision.

their first four games and left them one of the two unbeaten Big Ten teams.

Gonso completed only seven of 17 passes for 114 yards, but carried the ball 22 times for 119 yards.

Gonso hit Butcher with a three-yard touchdown toss in the first quarter after Iowa's Bob Anderson had kicked a 30-yard field goal. The tireless Gonso contributed a 47-yard run to the 73-yard Hoosier scoring drive.

A short Iowa punt set up another Indiana touchdown drive in the second quarter. Mike Krioshia went the last yard for the score and Indiana carried a 14-3 halftime lead.

Iowa came back with a 61-yard scoring drive in the first series of the third quarter. Ed Podlak passed the last 11 to Paul Usinowicz. The Hawkeyes then got the lead 17-14 in the final period on a Podlak one-yard plunge.

John Isenbarger ran a kickoff back 33 yards to the Hoosier 40, to start the winning drive. Indiana then scored in nine plays with Gonso passing or running on seven of them. The clincher was a four-yard pass to Butcher.

Palmer Cops WorldMatch Play Title

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Arnold Palmer fired 12 birdies and an eagle while defeating Peter Thomson by a single hole in the 36-hole final of the Piccadilly Match Play golf tournament Saturday.

Thomson had 11 birdies and an eagle in a duel played in a howling wind and slashing rain. Palmer finished the two rounds 12 under par while Thomson was eight under. Immediately after the match, Palmer took off for London and then on to Houston where the U.S. Ryder Cup team will play the British this coming weekend.

A crowd of 10,000 swarmed over Wentworth's 6,997-yard par-36-38-74 course and from the moment the two teed off there was a sense of drama. Thomson, the Australian who is a five-time winner of the British Open, was 3 up at one stage on Palmer in the morning round.

Palmer came back with one of his famous charges and the two went into lunch all square with both of them shooting four under par 70s.

The two birdied the 34th with three and halved the 35th and 36th with 5s, as Palmer made his thin edge stand up.

GALE SAYERS of the Chicago Bears got off to a slow start the first month of the season, but last year's leading rusher in the National Football League is still force to be reckoned with as strong as his first name.

Gophers Nip Illini 10-7

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Jeff Nygren's 23 yard field goal with less than five minutes to play capped the sparkling play of sophomores Jim Carter and Phil Hagen to give Minnesota a 10-7 Big Ten victory over Illinois Saturday.

A stubborn Illinois defense, playing before a homecoming crowd of 56,103, matched Minnesota's touted defense and limited the Gophers to a net of 52 yards in the first half before finally yielding to the running of Carter and the passing of Hagen.

Minnesota took the lead in the third quarter on a 74 yard drive, climaxed by Carter's touchdown plunge only to have Illinois come right back.

Texas Rally Nets Edge On Sooners

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Rob Layne, son of a Texas gridiron hero of the past who never lost to Oklahoma, kicked a field goal Saturday to bring Texas a come-from-behind 9-7 victory over Oklahoma in the first game between the two intersectional rivals.

Rob, whose father is Bobby Layne, a Texas great who became a star in pro football, booted the field goal from the Oklahoma 25 early in the third period.

Then Bill Bradley, finally living up to his super tag, led the Longhorns on an 84-yard surge in 10 plays for the touchdown that sewed it up and marked 12 points while allowing only 13.

Texas was badly outplayed in the first half after Oklahoma rolled to a touchdown the first time it had the ball with Bob Warmack piloting the team with his running and passing and calling on Ron Shotts for a 41-yard dash that set up the score.

All the first half Texas was on the defense, and only pass interceptions could halt the Oklahoma powerhouse. Texas never got past midfield and its longest drive was only 30 yards.

The second half found a revitalized Texas that picked up by a recovered fumble, rolled to the Oklahoma 17 and Layne, a sophomore from Lubbock, Tex., kicked the field goal that furnished the points for victory.

Most Of State's Prep Unbeatens Stay That Way

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Most of the major unbeaten and United Illinois high school football teams battered their opponents Friday night to register their fifth victories.

One exception was Alton ranked as one of the strongest clubs in the state. After clobbering four Illinois teams, the Redbirds were held to a 6-6 tie by St. Louis University High.

Another upset forced Rockford West, favorite for the Big Eight crown, to surrender its unbeaten slate. The defending champions, Rockford Boylan, edged West 7-6 to throw the league race into a turmoil.

Moline's powerful Maroons extended their record to 5-0 with an easy 34-6 conquest of Cedar Rapids' Iowa Kennedy. In its 10 plays for the touchdown that sewed it up and marked 12 points while allowing only 13.

Belleville West a challenger for the Southwestern Conference title, kept its undefeated record intact with a 14-12 victory over Collinsville. Two weeks from now, Belleville will meet Alton in what will likely decide the conference crown.

Two unstoppable Mid-State Nine members, Peoria Spalding and East Peoria, preserved their states. Spalding's tough Irish romped past Peoria Woodruff 41-5 and East Peoria downed Peoria Limestone 18-5.

Naperville and Elgin Larkin, both undefeated, continued their battle for supremacy in the Upstate Eight. Larkin squeezed out a 3-0 triumph over once-beaten Wheaton Central and Naperville blanked DeKalb 13-0.

In the Illinois Eight, Lockport West rolled up its fifth victory of the campaign in turning back Lockport Central 19-7.

Joliet East, another undefeated Illinois Eight member, took a 14-0 victory from Kankakee Eastridge.

Joliet Catholic also made it 5-0 with a 34-18 decision over Aurora Marmion.

Danville Schlarman, the team that broke Champaign Central's 12-game win string last week, maintained its pace in trouncing Hoopeston 20-6 for its fifth in a row.

In the Chicago suburban area, Maine South and Proviso East expanded their records to 5-0. Maine South dealt Deerfield its first setback, 35-0, and Proviso East Trimmed New Trier East 21-7.

Effingham notched its 15th consecutive win by defeating Shelbyville 13-7.

In a Thursday game, Macomb Western hit 21 in a row with a 46-0 conquest of Carthage. In five game this season, Western has shut out its opposition while tallying 231 points.

USC Blasts Irish, 24-7

'OJ' Sparks Top-Ranked Team To Win

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — O.J. "Orange Juice" Simpson was a three-touchdown tidal wave in the second half, sweeping top-ranked Southern California to a 24-7 humbling of favored Notre Dame in a wild football game Saturday.

The Trojans' fifth straight triumph impressively avenged a 51-0 massacre by Notre Dame in last year's finale at Los Angeles.

After being throttled in the first half, which produced a 7-0 Notre Dame lead, the lithe and swift Simpson, top national rusher, demoralized the Irish with touchdown runs of 35, 3, and 1 yard.

In the hard-played, but often weird contest, in which there were a dozen turnovers on pass interceptions and fumbles, Simpson battered Notre Dame for 163 yards on 39 carries to better his season average of 150 yards per game.

Simpson was at his best in the 17-point Trojan third quarter, in which the erratic Irish collapsed badly.

Simpson's one-yard scoring smash tied the score at 7-7 when the butter-fingered Irish fumbled on the second half kickoff and the Trojans' Steve Swanson recovered on the Notre Dame 18.

Held to 41 yards on 14 first-half carries, Simpson ignited the blazing Trojan comeback by cracking 18 yards on seven carries, his last a one-yard drive for the first USC touchdown.

The real backbreaker for the Irish, whose heralded Terry Hanratty had five passes intercepted, came on a 35-yard touchdown run by Simpson, his longest scrimmage jaunt of the season, with 4:34 left in the third quarter.

Kansas Shocks Nebraska 10-0

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Fired up Kansas shocked eighth-ranked Nebraska 10-0 sive effort led by Tackle Orville Turgeon of Valentine, Neb. and a surprising offense led by the bullet passes of Bob Douglass.

Kansas hadn't won a game this season for new coach Pepper Rodgers, while Nebraska was unbeaten. Rodgers was carried off the field by his jubilant players. Nebraska had never been shut out in Bob Devaney's six years as coach.

The gritty 203-pound Turgeon wasn't the only Kansas defensive hero. Another was John Zook, 6-4, 240-pound defensive end who gave Frank Patrick, Nebraska's 6-7, rookie quarterback a bad afternoon and made 15 tackles. Other standouts were Linebackers Mike Sweatman and Mickey Doyle. Nebraska never threatened in the last half and mounted only one real threat in the entire game.

Douglass, a 6-3 205-pound junior, hit two of three passes for 24 yards and carried four times for 24 yards in Kansas' 62-yard touchdown drive. He fired a 12-yard strike to Tight End John Mosier to the Nebraska four, then rolled out to score on the next play behind the blocking of Fullback Mike Reeves, 74 seconds left in the first half.

Bill Bell's 30-yard field goal with 36 seconds left in the game was set up by Tommy Ball's 28-yard return after a pass interception.

Illinois State 28, Eastern Ill. 6
CHARLESTON, Ill. (AP) — Illinois State University proved too strong for Eastern Illinois University Saturday as it wrapped up a 28-6 Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference football victory.

State, which now has won five straight, was in its IIAAC season opener. Eastern has lost two conference games.

Colorado Blasts Missouri, 23-9 in Big 8 Battle

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Sixth-ranked Colorado polished its prestige with a solid 23-9 Big Eight Conference football victory Saturday over previously unbeaten Missouri.

The Buffaloes lagged by a point momentarily in the first period after Missouri quarterback Gary Kombrink's 75-yard touchdown run but held command the rest of the way and rolled to their fourth victory without defeat.

Often unable to penetrate Missouri's powerful defense near touchdown territory, Colorado used Dave Bartlett's toe for three field goals from 38, 29 and 10 yards.

The Buffaloes relied on the running of quarterback Bob Anderson, fullback Wilmer Cooks and halfback William Harris for most of their yardage on two touchdown marches in the first half.

Williams Gets 3-Year Contract With Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Dick Williams, the rookie manager who led Boston's cinderella Red Sox to the American League pennant, was rewarded with a new three-year contract Saturday and predicted his team "will be even stronger next season and will be a contender for many years to come."

The salary was not disclosed but Williams said club "treated me very well," and General Manager Dick O'Connell said the manager got "a very substantial increase in pay."

The Red Sox announced that pitching coach Sal Maglie "would not be retained next year." The club said the other coaches—Eddie Popowski, Bobby Doerr and Al Lakeman—would return.

Maglie, former pitching great with the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers, completed his fifth year as a Red Sox coach this season.

Williams said he had a man in mind for the pitching coach job but he would not give his name. Williams got an estimated $30,000 for this season's one-year contract. Most guesses put his new salary in the $50,000-a-year range for the new pact which extends through 1970.

"We think he's done a tremendous job," O'Connell said at a news conference. "We hope he keeps it up for many years to come."

Owner Tom Yawkey beamed and shook hands with Williams at the signing which took place at a table draped with a brand new banner lettered: "Boston Red Sox, 1967 American League champions."

Williams, who took over a ninth place club this season and led it to the top before losing the World Series to the St. Louis Cardinals, told newsmen that he had confidence from the beginning.

"I only had a one-year contract," he said, "but I signed a two-year lease on my house and bought my furniture on a three-year plan."

Routt Blanks Triopia 12-0; JHS In 6-6 Tie

Rockets Capture Key PMSC Contest

By BUFORD GREEN
Sports Editor

ARENZVILLE — A ball-controlling ground game, led by Paul Lambert, allowed Routt to take a giant step towards its first PMSC Conference title and a possible undefeated season, here Friday night, as the Rockets beat Triopia for the first time, 12-0.

Lambert, a 190-pound senior fullback, scored both touchdowns and romped for 158 yards of Routt's 250 yards rushing. Lambert was also a key in the strong Routt defense that kept Triopia out of range on all but two occasions during the evening.

The victory boosts Routt to a perfect 5-0 record and a 3-0 conference mark. Triopia suffered its third loss in five games and fell to 2-1 in the league standings.

What was expected to be a ball control game with both teams concentrating on avoiding mistakes was anything but in the early going. As a matter of fact both Rocket scores came as a direct of Triopia mistakes deep in their own territory. Routt lost three fumbles and Triopia lost two fumbles and had a pass intercepted.

Routt coughed up the ball at the 50 on their second play from scrimmage, giving Triopia an early shot. But the Rockets got the ball right back on a fumble in the same spot.

Five plays later Triopia's Jim Morris picked up a Rocket fumble at the Trojans' 33. Three plays later Routt quarterback Loyd Krumlauf picked off a Triopia aerial on the Trojans' 31, setting up the first score of the game.

Rockets Break Ice

Lambert and halfback Dan Welsh punched out three first downs to the Triopia seven. Lambert gained six to the one, but Krumlauf had to fall on his own fumble at the two. On the next play the hard-running Lambert busted over right guard for the initial score. Lambert's run for the extra point fell inches short.

Triopia, aided by a key 15-yard walkoff against the Rockets, managed to march from its own 17 into Routt territory before the stout Rocket defense held on its own 31.

Dennis Brainer picked up out's third fumble of the first half near the end of the second quarter, giving Triopia's best scoring chance of the night. Taking over on the Routt 16, Rodney Nobis, Jim Love-

Shepard Takes Over As Pirates' Pilot

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Larry Shepard, with but one year's experience, was named manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday.

Shepard, 48, spent 25 years in the minors as a pitcher, player-manager and manager until the 1967 season when he moved up to the majors as pitching coach for the Philadelphia Phillies.

Now he's seen a dream come true: Managing a big league club.

He succeeds Danny Murtagh, who was named interim manager in mid-season after Harry "The Hat" Walker was fired. Murtagh has since gotten a front office job with the Pirates.

Shepard, grinning and happy, was at Forbes Field when General Manager Joe L. Brown made the announcement.

"Larry," Brown said, "has knowledge of the game, experience, dedication, industry, knowledge of the National

Two Penalties Hurt In Fourth Quarter

JERSEYVILLE — The Jacksonville Crimsons played to their second consecutive 6-6 tie against the Jerseyville Panthers, Friday night, blowing a chance to gain the edge in the fourth quarter with two heavy penalty losses.

Crimson quarterback Duane Mounts rolled his team to the Jerseyville two-yard line on two passes to Tom Phillips and Otis Pitts that accounted for 32 yards.

With a first down situation, the Crimsons were caught clipping and were moved back to the 17-yard line. Another flag for unsportsmanlike conduct from the Jacksonville bench set the Crimsons back to the 32-yard line.

Mounts tried to recover the deficit with assistance on one play from John Mathews who took a pass for 24 yards. The play brought the Crimsons to the Panther's eight-yard line but they lost the ball.

Both teams scored in the second quarter. Jerseyville on a pass play from quarterback Phil Goss to Rick Fuchs, and Jacksonville on a one-yard plunge by Matthews.

Jerseyville was first to score. Jacksonville had been forced to punt from their own 40. The snap to punter Steve Gaudio was high and Jerseyville's Tom Molloy recovered the ball on Jacksonville's 3-yard line.

A number of ground plays and a pass play brought the Panthers to Jacksonville's nine yard line. Fuchs caught the scoring pass as he fell into the end zone.

Mounts intercepted Matthews' opening Jacksonville scoring drive intercepting a pass at midfield. Mounts guided the Crimsons to the Jerseyville one-yard line from where Matthews made the scoring lunge.

Neither team was able to take advantage of breaks they received. Jerseyville recovered two fumbles in the first quarter but good stands by the Jacksonville defense halted their drives.

Jerseyville grabbed possession of the ball in the last minute of play in the first half. Fuchs grabbed a pass that went 20 yards on the play. Williams then went on a reverse to Rick Guilander who rambled for 21 yards, and put them on Jacksonville's 20-yard line. Goss couldn't hang on though and Jerseyville recovered a fumble by Matthews and progressed to the Crimsons' 28 yard line where the drive stopped and Jacksonville took over with one second remaining.

It was an even first half, Jacksonville gaining 98 yards rushing and Jerseyville gaining 84. The Crimsons gained 44 yards in the air while Jerseyville gained 40. Jacksonville gained eight first downs, Jerseyville seven. Both teams kicked twice, and neither was penalized.

Jerseyville dominated the second half, however, with 81 yards against the Crimsons' 41 on the ground. The Panthers limited Jacksonville to 23 plays while they made 32.

WHO ELSE? St. Louis Cardinal pilot Red Schoendienst Friday was named manager of the year in the annual AP poll. Schoendienst, a former star Cardinal player, guided his charges to the World Series championship in his third year at the helm. (AP Wirephoto)

Schoendienst NL Manager Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Red Schoendienst, the quiet leader who lifted the St. Louis Cardinals from a sixth-place finish in 1966 to an explosive, runaway victory in the National League pennant race the past season, was named the circuit's manager-of-the-year Friday.

Schoendienst, whose Cardinals also defeated Boston in a seven-game World Series, drew 257 votes from among the 397 baseball writers and broadcasters who participated in the annual Associated Press poll.

Leo Durocher of the Chicago Cubs was second with 119 votes. Cincinnati's Dave Bristol was a distant third with 11.

Schoendienst maneuvered his club to the top with a number of strategic moves that included the shifting of Mike Shannon from the outfield to third base. The manager moved Nelson Briles, a relief pitcher, into the starting rotation in mid-July after ace Bob Gibson was sidelined with a broken right leg. Briles finished with 14 victories.

The St. Louis skipper also made effective use of Dick Hughes and Steve Carlton, young starting pitchers, plus a relief staff that included Ron Willis and Joe Hoerner.

The Cardinals were tied for first place with Chicago on July 24. However, they went on a 13-3 streak in the next two weeks and forged an eight-game lead.

St. Louis clinched first place two weeks before the end of the regular season, finishing with 101-60 record and 10½ games in front of second-place San Francisco.

CUTTING IN: Danny Welsh cuts in to miss Triopia's Dave Nergenah while getting blocking help from teammate Paul Lambert. Welsh was one of the offensive sparkplugs Friday as Routt rolled up a 12-0 victory over Triopia in Arenzville.

Cards Have 'Ball' After Series Win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "Well, this year's over. Now we have to start thinking about next year," Dal Maxvill said while he was still celebrating this year.

The world champion St. Louis Cardinals threw themselves a ball Thursday night at General Manager Stan Musial's restaurant.

Gov. Warren Hearnes of Missouri was there with a ham for Manager Red Schoendienst of the Cardinals. He had bet the prize ham against a dozen lobbyists put up by Massachusetts Gov. John Volpe that St. Louis would win the World Series.

Bob Gibson made Hearnes and the Cardinals winners by beating Jim Lonborg and the Boston Red Sox 7-2 in the seventh game of the World Series Thursday.

Hearnes said he decided to give the ham to a deserving member of the Cardinals. He said he couldn't pick out any one man, so he decided to give it to club President August Busch Jr., Musial or Schoendienst.

The Cubs' third place finish under Durocher in 1967 was considered remarkable in view of their performance the previous campaign in which they wound up in the cellar, winning only 59 games and losing 103. Durocher moved to Chicago in 1966 after a 10-year absence from the managerial ranks.

Bristol had the Reds in first place during most of the first two months of the past season. They slumped later on, though, and finished fourth with an 87-75 mark, one-half game behind Chicago.

In 1896 Stanford played two scoreless ties in football. Both were against the Olympic Club.

Carrollton Nips Winchester 12-6 For IVC Victory

WINCHESTER — Carrollton dropped Winchester, 12-6, here Friday evening. The game was part of Illinois Valley Conference's Friday night action.

Mark Frech threw a two-yard pass to Mike Price who then scored for Carrollton in the second period. The conversion attempt was no good. Kim Hipkins ran two yards off tackle to again score for Carrollton in the same frame.

Winchester scored on a 23-yard end run by Don Campbell which climaxed a 73-yard drive. The point after failed.

Winchester approached to the Carrollton 20-yard line, but Carrollton intercepted a pass and stopped the drive late in the fourth quarter.

Carrollton is 4-0-1 in the season, 2-0-1 on the league. Winchester is 3-2 in the season, 2-1 in the conference.

The Mature Parent An Aged Parent's Outlook Is an Emotional Whirlpool

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
As you know, babies regard us as parts of them. Their experiences are our experiences — and that's it. Which is why they roar with rage if we don't immediately join them in the discomforts of their wet diapers and hunger pangs to alleviate their feelings of helplessness. We can be reeling with headaches or shocked with grief, but so far as the baby or toddler is concerned, our different existence does not exist.

I recall this knowledge of ours for a reader who writes: "Sixteen months ago my 82-year-old mother had a stroke. Though she is slowly recovering some use of her right leg, she seems to blame me for helplessness. If she can't find the cane she uses (usually it's right beside her) she will accuse me of misplacing it. My nerves are shot because of her constant complaints of my neglect of her. Yet I am doing all her shopping and housework for her . . ."

Like babies, an aged parent, experiencing the lonely discomforts of their advanced years, can want us to feel them, too. The truth is, as the baby cannot grant us any different existence, the aged parent, confronting the approach of death may want us to die with him. I might just want my own dear child to die with me if the grown-up part of my brain is at some time disabled by an illness of age which reduces me to the primitive "I am you" egoism of babyhood.

This is a helpful truth to know. Because all the sentimental talk about motherhood's glory makes it most difficult to recognize the angry baby in an aged, complaining parent. We hear about "second childhood" but we won't connect its meaning to the criticisms by which mama is insisting that we have no right to a health she doesn't also possess. We don't really realize that time has turned us into her parent as it has turned her into the baby for whom our different existence does not exist. Like you, we're wounded by the egoism we expect in the baby. And just won't displace mama from the authority pedestal she has so long held to the emotional nursery to which she has actually retreated.

When a big ship starts sinking at sea, occupants of its lifeboats have to row like mad to pull clear of its down-pulling vortex. If they don't fight to put distance and separation between their lifeboats and the ship, down they go with it. So, at times like yours, we have to know what's going on. For, believe me, all the down-pulling currents of this earth are not located in oceans. They can be in us and in our parents, too.

Garibaldi is again in sight of St. Peter's dome, with his army. The new opera house in Paris, besides forty busts, twenty statues and four groups, is to be ornamented by five hundred marble pillars, each twenty-six and a half feet high, forty-three inches in circumference, and weighing nearly fourteen tons. They are in five colors, white, rose, green, red and violet, and are brought from the Pyrenees, Italy, Sweden, Spain and Algeria.

A French fleet of ironclads, destined for service in Roman waters in resistance to Garibaldi, has left Toulon. The widest rumors in regard to Italy are being circulated in Paris. It is reported that the Italian crown prince has put himself at the head of an army to resist the French. Another rumor says King Victor Emanuel will abandon his crown. Alexander Dumas says he will not visit the United States unless invited to do so by a special act of congress.

When Virginia Was Younger

By GRACE T. HOLMES

In the early 1880s, there were several segments of our society that have vanished and will never be known by modern inhabitants.

Those whose homes were in the country, they might look out a window any day and see a dark, pudgy man coming down the road carrying a huge pack on his back. This man was a peddler and was perhaps Italian or Syrian. He spoke poor English and the listener had to use his imagination to get the conversation.

However, it resulted in his being admitted to display his merchandise.

He showed linens, laces, tapestry, various pieces of needlework and the housewife purchased something from his pack. If his visit was during the morning, he was given his dinner and if he came late in the afternoon he asked to be given a bed for the night. He had supper with the family and the peddlers are no more, but who would dare offer this kind of hospitality to a stranger these days.

Road Followers

During these years "tramps" were becoming more numerous. They generally followed railroad tracks and could be seen sitting near the right-of-way before a small fire with a tin can sitting on top of it in which they were making their coffee. They came into town in the morning and begged their breakfast. Many of the wells had curbs with a shelf on which the bucket set while water was being poured into it from the well bucket. When the weather was not too cool, the housewife used this to set out breakfast for the "tramp," also known as "hobo." When he left, he usually had a big offering of bread and meat, toward his next meal.

The word "sandwich" was not as yet in use.

Virginia had a calaboose, a two-story small brick building. It was located a block south of the public square where the Grace Lutheran church now stands. The city council used the second story for meetings, while the first story was used as the city jail and sometimes as a polling place. In it was a small heating stove and a short supply of fuel, furnished by the city. Tramps soon got next to this place as lodging for the night in cold weather. When they arrived before dark, they solicited the merchants for old newspapers. Some they put on the floor to sleep on and used the rest to cover up with for warmth. There is seldom a tramp around any more.

Those Gypsies

The worst outsiders we had to contend with were gypsies. In these early days they located a campsite and it was in a place where there were a number of farm homes. They arrived in covered wagons each pulled by a team of horses. These were unhitched and stacked out on the camp grounds.

Journal Courier, Jacksonville, Ill., Oct. 15, 1967

Usually two tents were pitched. They brought along a big, fierce looking bear and he had to be staked out before the gypsies started out to beg from the farm people. One thing they always wanted was hay. Usually two women went together and they approached the farmer with "Just a little hay, good man—just a little hay!" When he took them to a haystack, he found they could carry huge amounts on their shoulders, and resembled walking haystacks. A favorite camp ground in this area was what would be about a block and a half in town, north of the present city waterworks. There was a low grassy plot on the west side of the highway and on the west side of it was a wooded area with a narrow road winding thru the timber leading to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Looker. They stayed in the community until many of their wants were supplied, then moved on to other camps.

Deft With Hands

In later years, after they had accumulated enough "illegotten gain" to buy cars they stopped on the out edge of town and walked into the business district, entered the stores and began handling the merchandise. They were like magicians and could make things disappear without you seeing that it was being done. Their long black braids hung down their backs and they were decked out in many bright beads. As soon as city authorities learned that they were in town and were unwelcome visitors in the business houses, they were ordered to leave the city. About twenty-five years ago, a favorite camping place was on the north side of the under pass north of Jacksonville.

AFS Adult-Student Picnic

Sunday, Oct. 1, the J.H.S. American Field Service Chapter and student AFS club held an afternoon picnic at the Girl Scout Camp on Lake Jacksonville in honor of this year's foreign students and their host families: Israel Tesmesgin of Ethiopia and her American family, the R. L. Shewmakers; and Peter Jilke of Sweden, who is living with the George Zeigler family. Applications are currently being taken from J.H.S. students who wish to apply for the summer or school Americans Abroad Program. Pat Bradshaw, who went to Holland in 1966, and Harold Geuther who spent this past summer in Sweden, are the most recent local students who have participated in this program. Officers for the student AFS Club this year are president, Eleanor Applebee; secretary, Rosi Silva and treasurer, Sandi Price.

The chapter officers are president, Mrs. Robert Bradney; vice president, Mrs. Robert Hemphill; secretary, Mrs. Michael Templin and treasurer, Dr. McKendree Blair.

Use Eggs Within a Week

By GAYNOR MADDOX, NEA Food Editor

Q — When I buy eggs I always store them in the egg rack of my refrigerator. Sometimes I find their flavor isn't too good when I cook them. Why not?

A — Perhaps you have stored them too long. It is wise to use them within a week if you want to get the best flavor and cooking quality. If stored too long, even in a refrigerator, they may develop off flavors and lose some thickening and leavening power.

To store leftover egg yolks, cover with cold water and store in refrigerator in tightly closed container. Keep leftover egg whites in refrigerator in tightly covered container. But use both yolks and whites within a day or two.

Q — How are cranberries picked?

A — Within the past four years, most cranberries have been water-harvested. They are no longer harvested with a wooden hand scoop. Men in hip boots push machines through flooded cranberry bogs, beating the berries loose, which indicates that the traditional wooden cranberry scoops will now be used mainly in our homes as magazine racks.

HIGH-LYSINE—The pig keeps a watchful eye on the feed bucket as Orville G. Bentley, dean of the U.I. College of Agriculture, center; A. H. Jensen, animal scientist, left, and J. A. Jackobs, agronomist, examine a sample of the high-lysine corn ration fed to finish hogs in a U.I. test. The high-lysine corn fed hogs gained as efficiently as other hogs fed a regular corn-soybean meal diet. Agronomists predict farmers will be growing small acreages of the new corn within the next five years.

UI Test Shows High-Lysine Corn Rations Drops Protein Need

The new high-lysine corn has "excellent potential" in rations for finishing hogs and swine breeding herds, says University of Illinois animal scientist A. H. Jensen.

Regular corn is deficient in lysine and other essential amino acids, the building blocks of protein. But lysine is the one amino acid that limits finishing hog gains. In addition to lysine, the new corn contains more of other essential acids — such as tryptophan — than does regular corn.

Jensen explains that in a recent U. of I. test hogs fed high-lysine corn plus supplemental lysine gained as fast as hogs fed a standard corn-soybean meal diet.

During a six-week period, Jensen fed four different rations to finishing hogs that weighed an average of 115 pounds at the beginning of the test. Two groups of nine pigs received one of the four rations. All of the rations contained 2.7 percent of a vitamin and mineral premix.

The two groups of pigs that received a standard 12 percent protein ration containing 89.3 percent regular corn and 8 percent soybean meal gained an average of 1.65 pounds daily. They required 3.5 pounds of feed to put on a pound of gain.

Another two groups received a 9.5 percent-protein ration containing 97 percent high-lysine corn and 0.3 percent commercially-produced lysine. These pigs also gained an average of 1.65 pounds each day. But they required only 3.39 pounds of feed to produce a pound of gain.

Jensen fed some other pigs a 12 percent-protein ration containing 93 percent high-lysine corn and 4.3 percent soybean meal. The average daily gain was 1.8 pounds. And the pigs required 3.33 pounds of feed per pound of gain.

Another ration containing 9.5 percent total protein was 97.3 percent high-lysine corn. Pigs fed this ration averaged only 1.35 pounds of gain a day and needed 4 pounds of feed to produce a pound of gain.

More Protein Helps
The high-lysine corn used in the test contains about 0.35 percent lysine. But the finishing pig needs at least 0.5 percent of his diet as lysine for satisfactory growth.

Jensen points out that high-lysine corn, supplemented with extra lysine or soybean meal, satisfies the pig's need for some other essential amino acids that regular corn lacks. Adding only lysine to regular corn, then, will not meet the nutritional needs of hogs.

High-lysine corn reduces the amounts of protein and amino acid supplements needed for finishing hogs and the heeding herd. But growing pigs weighing less than 115 pounds need the

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

FARMERS, STRIKES, AND BARGAINING

Farmers have a big interest in the many strikes and bargaining battles between labor groups and employers. When new contracts raise the cost of labor, farmers are struck in three ways:

1. An increase in the expenses of processing and distributing farm products, which reduces the share of the consumers' dollar received by farmers.
2. An increase in the prices that farmers must pay for farm equipment and supplies.
3. An increase in the prices of the products and services that are required by farm families.

Marketing Costs Rise: In 1966, consumers spent $83.4 billion for food produced by U.S. farmers. Of this amount, marketing costs took $55.3 billion — $2.6 billion more than in 1965. Of each $1.00 spent for food produced in the U.S., marketing expenses took 67 cents, leaving only 33 cents that could be paid to the farmers who produced it.

Farm Operating Costs Rise: In 1966, farmers spent $33.3 billion to produce food and other farm products. This amount was $2.4 billion (8 percent) more than in the previous year.

Production expenses ate up two-thirds of all cash received by farmers from the sale of farm products. Only one-third ($16.1 billion) remained as income for the farmer and his family.

Farm Living Costs Climb, Too: In earlier years, farmers produced much of the food, fuel, and other items required by the family. Now, however, most farmers specialize in the production of one or two products — corn and soybeans, for example. Hence, they must buy practically all of the food and other products and services needed by the family.

The average prices of products and services purchased by farm families increased 3 percent from mid-1966 to mid-1967.

Wages High, and Going Up: Labor is by far the biggest cost in the marketing of farm products and in the production of products and services required for farm operation and family living. Last year, wages, salaries, and other compensation to employees in this county totaled $436 billion. Corporate profits (after taxes) totaled $49.3 billion, but only $21.5 billion was paid out as dividends to investors. The remainder, $27.8 billion, was needed and used for modernization and expansion of facilities. Thus, the income from wages and salaries was 20 times the income from dividends. In 1966, the compensation of employees was 49 percent greater than in 1960.

The present round of wage increases will tend to hold down farm prices and farm income. Higher costs for the transportation, processing, and distribution of farm products will increase the spread between what the consumer pays and what the farmers receive. At the same time, rising prices for farm equipment and supplies will increase farm operating expenses. Finally, rising prices for the products and services that farm families need will shrink the purchasing power of each dollar of net income received by farmers.

Clearly, farmers have a big stake in wage rates and labor costs. But, so far as we know, farmers have little or no representation at the bargaining tables where labor costs are established.

Safety Tips For Hunters

Even though many hunters shoot for ring-necked pheasants or deer, each year a few wind up bagging a "deer."

Fall and hunting go together, but unfortunately, so do hunting and accidents, cautions O. L. Hogsett, University of Illinois Extension safety specialist.

Avoid the likelihood of a hunting accident. Follow these suggested rules of the woods.

Wear bright, blaze-orange hat and vest. They are easily noticed by other hunters.

Lay your gun down unloaded when crossing a fence alone. Cross the fence, then retrieve the firearm — stock first.

Give the gun to a companion when crossing the fence with friends. One person holds both guns, muzzle up, while the other crosses.

Unload your gun or open the action before crossing or jumping a ditch or small stream.

Keep the muzzle pointed forward, either up or down, not horizontal, while carrying a gun.

Check the hunting area thoroughly for other people, houses and livestock.

Keep the gun barrel free of snow, mud and other restrictions.

Know your companions' locations at all times.

Be sure it's game before you aim.

History Of Wondrous Soybean In Illinois Related In Article

The story of soybeans in America — and Illinois' monumental contributions to their development — is described by University of Illinois Prof. Lawrence H. Simerl in the current issue of Illinois Business Review.

First brought to the U.S. sometime before 1804, soybeans remained an agricultural curiosity for more than a century. By the 1920s the U. of I. took the lead in developing and promoting the crop and now soybeans rank second only to corn as the nation's top cash crop. American farmers produce 1 billion bushels annually, worth $2.5 billion.

A few farmers began to grow soybeans for forage and seed in the 1890s, and researchers began to study and experiment with the beans.

Late in the 19th century the U.S. Department of Agriculture started collecting about 10,000 varieties of soybeans in their native Orient, growing them in test plots in many areas of the country. W. J. Morse was a leader in this work for years and in 1936 helped establish the USDA Soybean Laboratory at U. of I. The lab coordinated research work in all states and Canada.

Many University of Illinois staff members made contributions to the development of the crop. Among them were E. W. Lehmann, J. C. Hackleman and W. L. Burlison.

Harvesting Problems
Lehmann, head of the department of agricultural engineering for 30 years, tackled the harvesting problem. Some of the first varieties were too tough to harvest with available mowers and binders. One farmer reported using a corn-knife and hatchet. Lehmann found that when binders and threshing machines were used losses of beans ran to 30 and 40 per cent. He believed that combines, then used only in the dry western plains, could be used to save both beans and labor.

In 1924 he persuaded a manufacturer to ship a combine to Illinois for trial. Although the machine was big and awkward, it worked. A decade later smaller combines were introduced, and by World War II almost all soybeans and small grains were harvested with the machines.

Encouraged By "Hack"
Prof. Hackleman, extension specialist in crop production, worked closely with Morse in the testing and development of soybean varieties suitable for Illinois climate and soils. He also traveled the state encouraging farmers to grow the crop and worked with processors to establish a market for soybeans.

Burlison, long-time head of the department of agronomy, was a leader in supporting research in the production of soybeans and in developing industrial uses for the beans.

The state of Illinois gained the lead in soybean production around 1925 and has never relinquished it. By 1934 it was pro-

LAW on the farm

SERVICE OCCUPATION TAX RAISED

Farmers have been paying more Service Occupation Tax since August 1, 1967.

The service tax had applied only to the serviceman's cost of the tangible personal property which he installed. Now the tax applies on the serviceman's entire gross receipts, including labor.

This tax applies to those who sell specially made machines, tools, dies, jigs, patterns, gauges or other specially made tools or equipment.

The tax also applies to a person in the business of repairing, renovating or reconditioning tangible personal property for a user — if personal property is sold as a part of the service.

Repair work will affect many transactions relating to farmers, but there are exceptions. For example, if a barn is painted by a commercial painter, there is no Service Occupation Tax. The reason is that this is an improvement to real estate. However, if he paints a truck or tractor, the tax would apply to the cost of the whole job, including paint and labor.

This tax applies to all repairs made on motor vehicles, mowers and other farm implements when there is a transfer of tangible personal property to the user.

For example, if a person repairs your mower by replacing any part (spark plug, blade, etc.) the tax applies to the cost of the entire job.

One Way To Do It
You can avoid this tax if you buy the item to be installed and then hire a serviceman to install it. In that case, there would be no transfer of tangible personal property from serviceman to user.

If the serviceman merely tunes a motor or sharpens a blade without replacing any parts, the Service Occupation Tax would not apply.

Also, the tax does not apply if your neighbor who is handy with engines repairs your automobile by installing a new fuel pump or other item, unless he is engaged in the car repair business.

There is a real question as to whether certain objects on the farm are regarded by law as real or personal property. For instance, there may be milking equipment attached to the barn which is easily removable for cleaning purposes. If, by its attachment to the realty, the equipment or a part of it becomes a fixture, and thereby realty, the tax would not apply to repair work done on it. On the other hand, if it is not a fixture because of the ease of removal, the tax would apply to repairs.

When Tax Is Not Levied
The Department of Revenue lists certain situations in which the serviceman is not taxed.

There is no tax when the service is delivered outside the state, nor is there a tax when the service is performed by one who is not in the business of selling such a service.

No tax is applicable where there is no transfer of tangible personal property from the serviceman to the consumer. The tax is not imposed when the sale of service is made for or by any government body. Also, no tax imposed when the sale of service is made for or by any charitable, religious or educational organization.

Another exemption is the sale of service to a purchaser for resale. For example, one who sprays crops is not taxed when he purchases spray. The tax is applied when he performs the service of spraying the crops. At that time there is a resale of the spray.

The rate of tax is 4 1/4 percent which normally is passed on to the customer. Each municipality and county has the authority to adopt the Service Occupation Tax at a rate not to exceed 3 1/4 percent so that if your municipality or county has adopted the tax, your rate may be 5 percent.

Morgan NFO Advocates Grain Bank

The Morgan County NFO held a dinner meeting at Hamilton's restaurant Tuesday evening. Edgar Robinson, Jr. conducted the business meeting and as chairman of the grain board reported on latest developments in the grain bank program.

The NFO is advising its members to store their grain at harvest time and to hold.

"Disaster is ahead for farmers if they do not store their grain at harvest time and hold because if enough grain is sold at harvest time at the present low prices it will mean greatly increased hog production and also cattle being fed to heavy weights," Robinson said. Storing and holding at harvest time is not enough because the grain supply must be held off the market until prices reach satisfactory levels and then sold only when and in such amounts as the marketing channels will absorb the supply offered at the desired level.

"The purpose of the grain bank is to put a floor of $1.50 under corn, $3.00 under soy-

NEAR MISS

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

The ever increasing air traf-fic has lead to many near misses by private planes and airliners. One of these incidents shows why many aviation ex-perts have recommended that private aircraft flying by sight alone, be barred from the fields used by the big jet air liners using instrument flying. It also shows why these airliners need a three-man crew.

Just Routine

"During a routine IFR (In-strument Flight Rules) ap-proach to Runway 22 out-er marker at Newark," reports L. Willard, the airliner captain, "I was at the controls and the First Officer was handling other copilot duties. . . . Although the visibility was reported as five miles at Newark, it was dusk

Shouts Warning

"As we descended through 2,800 feet, the Second Officer sud-denly shouted a warning. I look-ed up and then to the left and almost immediately thereafter felt the control wheel move and we abruptly climbed an increas-ed turn to the right. I again took over control, continued the ap-proach and landed after de-claring a near miss.

Let's Go Birding

Thirsty Birds

By Emma Mae Leonhard

As the forerunners of winter steal in, we begin thinking of feeding the birds. We recall our fun of other years watching them come to our feeding sta-tions. We have watched the woodpeckers and nuthatches dig out bits of suet.

We have seen chickadees and titmice holding sunflower seeds by their feet and hammering out the kernels. We have admired our regular visitors, the Car-dinals, as they crush the sun-flower seeds in their strong red bills and rescue the rich hearts of the seeds for their winter food.

Water Needed Too

Birds, however, need water as well as food. When the world around us is ice-bound, they search out any tiny spot where flowing water may force its way out of its ice palace. They drink this ice-cold water and use it as a shower bath.

When our world is snow-bound, birds are thankful for this sugarless snow ice-cream. At times when all of the snow has melted except the hardened banks which the wind and cold have congealed, birds may suf-fer. Sometimes they find some relief by pecking at the porous flavorless sherbets or ices; that is, if they have the initiative to find such spots.

Occasionally we experience ice storms. Then both feed and water are locked in the thick coat of hard flustering ice. The hungry and thirsty birds need help at this tragic time, they may perish. Many do meet their death.

Dry Fall

Even during a dry fall when there is no ice nor snow, birds welcome some free drinks and baths. I was conscious of this one afternoon as I was mowing the lawn. I had thoughtlessly overlooked putting fresh water in the two bird baths; one bowl was entirely empty, evidently the favorite one of the Robins.

One Robin continued to scold until it caught my attention. Thinking that a cat might be worrying it, I searched the shrubbery, calling "Skat! Skat!" But I could arouse no cat.

Then noticing the Robin's flitting around the empty bird bath, I realized what the bird was trying to tell me. "No water. I'm thirsty!" it seemed to complain.

As soon as I cleaned the bowl and filled it with fresh water, the Robin flew to the tree over-head, dropped down to the water, and had a delightful splash.

Then I was more certain of what I already knew: if we have bird baths or feeding stations in our yards, we should fill them regularly. When we are too warm or too busy or too cold to fill the baths or feed-ers, it is then that the birds which have formed the habit of using them need our help the most.

"Just prior to the incident the First Officer was looking out the right toward the airport (and direction of the turn). Up-on hearing the alarm, he looked left, spotted the 'target' and after orientation also pulled back on the wheel shortly after the Second Officer had initiated the maneuver. His impression of the occurrence is that the Commanche would have come through our cockpit had the Second Officer not spotted it.

"As far as our cockpit duties were concerned this 'routine ap-proach' required full IFR at-tention plus the necessity for visual guard. With the present state of development it seems axiomatic that only the com-plete elimination of VFR (Vis-ual Flight Rules) traffic will ne-gate this dual requirement and that is not about to happen in the future.

"It may appear rather un-usual for a Second Officer to manipulate the flight controls from his position — it has cer-tainly never happened to me before. As a matter of fact, during our debriefing the Sec-ond Officer expressed some con-cern as to my reaction. I could only answer that I and the other 100 people aboard were indeed grateful he was there."

Retold From Dickens

Clemmency

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Editor's note: This is part 2 of Mrs. Dorr's retelling of Charles Dickens' "The Battle of Life" in his "Christmas Books."

Pocket Library

The lawyers wanted their documents signed, and this re-quired someone who could read. Clemmency was brought for-ward and asked if she had this ability.

"A little," she answered meekly.

"Such as the Prayer Book," he commented sourly.

"No, too hard," she modestly replied.

"I only read a thimble."

"Young woman, what are you talking about?"

"And a nutmeg grater."

Snitchey stared in disbelief and irritation, until Miss Grace interposed "Mottoes are stamp-ed on these two articles; from them our Clemmency learned to read; her own pocket li-brary."

"Let me see you read then," came the exasperated lawyer's order.

Clemmency pushed her plump hand into a pocket that hung beside her apron. Carefully she probed from one corner to the other, finding nothing, she reached into one at the other side.

Out came a handkerchief, a short candle, a small apple, a wrinkled orange, a penny, a cramp bone, (a sheep's knee cap for luck,) a padlock, scis-sors, a needle case, curl papers, cotton bits, a biscuit, and at the bottom, her worn thimble and humble nutmeg grater.

Snitchey observed the ac-cumulation sourly, "What does it say, girl?"

Clemmency Reads

Slowly Clemmency turned the thimble about on her finger reading as it moved, "Forgive and Forget."

"And the nutmeg grater," he demanded.

"Do as you would be done by" came the quotation haltingly.

Satisfied, the legalists saw their documents signed and sealed as coach time neared.

"Run Britain," came the Doctor's request. "Watch for the stage."

Coach Coming

"Coach at the hill top," called the servant, then "Coach through the woods."

In a swirl of goodbyes Brit-ain's last call sounded, "Coach at the bridge."

Dust, luggage, and Alfred rolled away from the break-fast group leaving Clemmency to replace her pocket treasures and trudge proudly to the kit-chen hearth, bright with her

Hallo-Wiener Roast

By Christine Hembrough

What better way could you throw an outdoor party than by a wiener roast? And since it's nearly Halloween you can throw a party for both. Just read on to see what I have cooked up.

Decorations are pretty much left to you. Of course, you'll need a fire or a broiler. A nice spooky bed sheet with a paint-ed on face would be nice to drape over the clothesline. And of course, you'd need a few pumpkins to light the way.

Plenty of Food

Foods are of course, what will make or break the party. You'll need plenty of hot dogs! It'd be best to cook over an open fire on a fork rather than a stick. Plus you'll need plenty of drinks like punch, soda, juices, and iced tea. You'll need potato chips, corn doodles, and other types of munchers to make a gay party.

Now, for the desserts. Good old pumpkin pie is good to be-gin with. And other favorite desserts are carmel apples, cakes, Halloween candy, and ice cream (such as sherbet and chocolate).

How About Costumes

Costumes should be home-made. In fact, specify that bought costumes are not allow-ed. Of course no paper cos-tumes since these might catch on fire while the person is cooking his hotdog!

You could give a prize for the best costume.

Game Time

Game time is traditional. Be-gin with apple dunking, and doughnuts tied with string to the clothesline. Then play, hide and seek or have a scavenger hunt around the neighborhood.

For your invitations cut out a hot dog bun. Write in the in-formation where you would or-dinarily put the hot dog. You can write: Come to a Hallo-Wiener-Roast, your address, the time, the date, and costume in-structions. Then, put a big toothy grin at the end and sign your name.

This party could really be a blast. With an extra magical touch of music the whole af-fair would turn out to be a pretty swinging shindig! Lots of fun!

HALLOWEEN

By John Rankin

There was a touch of au-tumn's chill in the air and the schoolyard lay under a blanket of freshly fallen leaves as Tom got on his bike and started home. Everywhere the colors of brown, gold and scarlet glisten-ing in the sun seemed to fit in with the Halloween season.

Even the vines and stunted shrubs growing along the tree-lined streets added to the sea-son's decorations and somehow seemed to call attention to the festive occasion.

But as he wheeled his bicycle along on his way home Tom was not interested in the beauties of nature. At the moment he was concerned with the event of Hal-loween only two nights away.

Until now, everybody, includ-ing Miss Gilman the teacher, had been anxiously awaiting a wiener roast in a grove out back of the school and a trick or treat affair to follow immedi-ately afterwards.

No Halloween Party

Everything had been carefully planned; especially in the selection of just the right costumes for the special occasion. But now, for some strange and un-explained reason, the whole thing had been called off. Miss Gilman had made the disap-pointing announcement right af-ter the afternoon recess. No ex-planation had been offered, and to make matters worse she had given everybody to understand that no further discussion of Halloween would be heard in the classroom.

Even Mr. Dooley, the friendly old custodian was reluctant to talk about it, and had been quick to switch the conversa-tion to something else when ap-proached on the subject. What then, had happened to every-body all at once?

Strange Mystery

What mysterious thing had come about to make even the mention of Halloween a crime? Was there some new law, maybe, against such things as wiener roasts and trick or treat?

But maybe all it was just some new rule the school had come up with. Tom was hope-ful that this was the case. He was anxious to get home and find out what his father knew about it. Perhaps other plans could be made for the Hal-lo-ween celebrations.

Gone

The rain came down in torrents, The winds were wild and high, And large hailstone were pelling.

The old Earth . . . from the sky: The lightning flashed its warning.

The rolling thunder kept A steady roaring rumble . . .

One never could . . . forget: The light flicked off, and on again,

I thanked God . . . for His Act, And next time, when they flick-

I KNEW . . . they would COME BACK:

At last, the morning dawned again,

I ALWAYS, welcome day . . . And though the Earth was weep-

Grain Futures Show Irregular Pattern In Week's Trading

By ED DE MOCH
AP Business Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Soybeans and grain futures traced an irregular price pattern on the Chicago Board of Trade during the week, reflecting the air of uncertainty and nervousness that hovered over the trade.

Some of the factors that tended to influence movements of prices during the week were frost in the corn belt, rapidly moving harvest of corn and soybeans, lack of exports, and toward the end of the week widespread rain that slowed down field work. Another U.S. Department of Agriculture crop report, on production as of Oct. 1, had some effect on prices also.

Record production of corn and soybeans will be harvested. A record wheat crop already has been brought in.

When trade closed for the week on Friday, wheat prices were 1 1/4 cents a bushel lower than a week ago to 1/2 cent higher. December 1.54-53 1/2; corn was 1/2 lower to 1/2 higher, December 1.14-1 1/2; oats were 1/2 lower to 1/2 higher, December 71-1/2 cents; rye was unchanged to 1/2 lower, December 1.18-1 1/2; and soybeans were 3/4 lower to 1/2 higher, November 2.63-1/2.

Soybean meal, which last week gained some 300 points, declined from 50 to 300 points, while soybean oil, a loser last week, advanced from 2 to 16 points. December soybean meal closed at 71.75-80 and oil at 8.73.

Prices of choice steers closed 20 cents lower to 10 cents higher, October 26.85.

Soybeans futures moved over the widest price range, about 4 cents, influenced largely by tightness of the commodity at Chicago and increasing movement from farm to processor points. Earlier in the week, prices firmed up on improved demand but with a tightness of supplies. Reports were current that farmers were withholding soybeans from markets in an attempt to raise prices.

Long Distance Rate Reduction Starts Nov. 1

The seventh long distance rate reduction in five and one-half years, expected to provide a $100 million annual savings for the nation's telephone users, will go into effect November 1, 1967. The new rates will apply to most station-to-station and person-to-person long distance calls to points outside of Illinois, depending upon the distance involved.

General Telephone Company of Illinois officials point out that customers will be able to call the furthest point in the U.S., excluding Alaska and Hawaii, during a new after-midnight special economy rate period for 55 cents (not including overtime charges and taxes).

Savings will also be realized by customers because the lower priced rate periods have been extended to cover more hours. Station-to-station calls will have day rates Monday through Friday from 7:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. (Present day rates cover the 4:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. time period).

New evening rates will be in effect Monday through Friday from 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. The night rate is scheduled to be in effect Monday through Friday from 7:00 p.m. to 7:00 a.m., plus all day and night on Saturdays, Sundays, New Year's Day, July 4th, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, and Christmas. The new night rate permits calls from Illinois to the furthest joint in the U.S., excluding Alaska and Hawaii, for only 85 cents (not including overtime charges and taxes).

In addition, the special late night economy rate has been added for certain station-to-station calls between midnight and 7:00 a.m. This special economy rate will apply to most calls unless an operator is utilized when the call could have been dialed or the distance involved is less than 355 miles. If a call during this time period does not qualify for the special late night economy rate because of the previous mentioned conditions, it will be billed at the regular night rate. The special late night economy rate permits a call to the furthest point in the U.S., excluding Alaska and Hawaii, for 65 cents (not including overtime charges and taxes).

Person-to-person calls will have day rates Monday through Friday from 7:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Night rates are in effect Monday through Friday from 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 a.m., plus all day and night on Saturdays and Sundays.

The various time periods refer to the local time at the point of origin. Detailed information, as always, is available from the long distance operator.

STATES' SUPPORT HIGHER, BUT NOT HIGH ENOUGH
WASHINGTON (AP) — States' support for higher education has soared over the past eight years to a record total of $4.4 billion—but it still isn't enough—a new educational survey reported Friday.

Support for public colleges and universities from individual states rose from $1.4 billion in 1959-60 to the $4.4-billion figure this year, the survey shows.

The results are reported by Prof. M. M. Chambers of Indiana University. They are being issued by the Office of Institutional Research of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges.

Even though state support is growing, the Chambers report states, increased demands on public higher education systems in many cases still are outstripping the financial support.

"Despite impressive percentage increases, the states have not kept up with the increasing responsibilities placed on public higher education," Chambers says in his report. "As state support has grown, demands and costs have risen even more rapidly."

The report cites population and enrollment growth, an increase in the number of graduate students, inflation, and rising salaries among the chief reasons for mounting costs.

LBJ Tells Congress Failure To Act Will Cause Price Increase

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson made new appeals to Congress this past week to take his proposal for higher income taxes off the shelf and pass it "before it is too late."

The President said failure to act would result in higher prices for consumer goods, tight money and steeper interest rates.

"Every day the Congress delays in passing the tax bill, the federal government loses $20 million in revenues," Johnson said. "The longer the delay, the more drastic the cutback that will be necessary."

The President has asked for a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes. A House committee, however, has refused to act on the tax bill until the administration cuts back its spending plans, possibly by $5 billion or more.

Johnson said that by maintaining economic stability the past six years this nation had been able to keep its consumer price rise lower than any nation of the industrial West.

"But," he said, "If we don't get the tax surcharge we are going to be unable to hold the line."

Johnson, in signing amendments to the Small Business Act, said he felt "most businessmen would rather pay a little more in taxes than expose themselves to the uncertain and uneven effects of tight money and spiraling interest rates."

The amendments increase the lending authority of the Small Business Administration by $650 million to $2.65 billion and extend repayment time for construction and renovation loans from 10 years to 15 years.

Despite the call by one of its committees to spending cuts, the House this past week voted a federal pay raise bill, some parts of which exceed the President's requests. It also passed a postal rate increase which would pay part of the bill.

The pay hikes for federal workers would amount to more than $2.6 billion a year when the final stage takes effect in April 1969. The postal rate increases would cost mailers about $890 million a year.

The Treasury Department reported, meanwhile, that the federal debt climbed above $340 billion during the week.

In other developments:

The one-millionth car of the 1968 model run rolled off the assembly line early in the week as the industry got off to its fastest start ever, despite the handicap of the Ford Motor Co. strike. But output for the week was expected to dip slightly below the previous week. General Motors Corp., Chrysler Corp., and American Motors Corp. planned a total of 140,516 assemblies for the week, compared with 142,873 the previous week and 197,114 a year earlier when Ford also was producing.

The nation's unemployment rate hit a two-year high in September, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. It said the jobless rate jumped 3 of 1 per cent to 4.1 per cent—the sharpest one-month rise in five years. It blamed the rise on a "fantastic" flock of women seeking jobs, but added that the total employment "remained strong" at 74.6 million.

Retail sales in September rose to a record $26.68 billion, the Commerce Department reported. It said the sales were one-half of 1 per cent above the previous record set in August of 1966.

Set Public Hearings On Inheritance Law Tax In Legislature

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois General Assembly resumes its 1967 session Monday with public hearings on whether to repeal a controversial inheritance tax law adopted without hearing in June.

Repeal and a consequent loss of about $20 million annually in revenue is expected.

Republican majority leaders say they do not plan to replace the measure with another revenue producer if it is repealed.

Atty. Gen. William G. Clark will lead the list of witnesses seeking repeal at a joint session of the House and Senate revenue committees.

It will be the third session of the assembly which first convened in January. It met again in September. This October meeting is expected to be recessed for at least a fourth meeting in February.

Although legislative leaders are aiming to adjourn by the end of the week, efforts are likely to duplicate September attempts to open other areas of legislation besides the inheritance tax.

Rep. Clarence E. Neff, R-Stronghurst, for example, announced Saturday he will ask to reduce license fees charged for school buses converted to campers. They were placed in a truck classification, he said, and are therefore charged fees about 20 times higher than before.

Attempt To Amend An attempt is scheduled to amend a June law authorizing cities to establish industrial development authorities with revenue bonding power to erect buildings to attract businesses.

The bonds are subject to state and local real estate taxes and also to federal income taxes which discourage industry. The proposed amendment would eliminate federal tax liability by stopping the local and state taxes in their stead a flat fee would be charged by state and local governments.

A drive to investigate the insurance industry is expected to be renewed by lawmakers who failed to achieve this during the regular January-to-June session.

Forbids Lake Dumping Gov. Otto Kerner, who is en route to the governors' conference in the Virgin Islands, apparently took some of the steam out of an expected criticism of his veto of a bill outlawing dumping of dredged material into Lake Michigan. He issued an executive order forbidding it.

Rep. William Pollack, R-Chicago, has suggested an investigation of fees charged at privately operated parking lots.

The criticized amendments to the inheritance tax law change the treatment of joint tenancy property and of classifications and exemptions of beneficiaries.

On joint tenancy, the old law taxed the surviving spouse for one-half of the property or money the deceased contributed to the jointly owned property. Under the old law, a surviving husband or wife could inherit $20,000 without any tax being due. The new law increases this exemption to $30,000 for the wife, and $25,000 for the husband. For any inheritance over this $25,000 or $30,000, the tax rate is 2 per cent on the next $50,000 inherited by a spouse. The rate of tax was not changed by the new law.

Under the old law, life insurance proceeds were not included in determining the value of an inheritance for tax purposes.

Under the new law, they are included, but the first $20,000 of life insurance received by husband or wife, and the first $5,000 received by a minor child is tax exempt.

Barber Shop Visits Cherished In Days Gone By

By VIRGIL REITHER BEARDSTOWN — A six-chair barber shop probably would have a difficult time "making a go of it" these days, but Beardstown had at least one in years past.

Otis Adkins recalls with nostalgic delight the days when he operated a shop in the 100 block on the east side of State street with Von Tidrick, Everett Mallicoat, Toad Adkins, Charlie Browning and Bob Bradberry as his employees.

In those days, Saturday customers had to wait for turns in the chairs and the barbers were busy from early morning until late at night.

Unlike today when haircuts are the main service performed in local shops, the barbers in the days before electric shavers did a lot of whisker cutting, mud packing, massaging etc. A patron getting "the works" often spent a $5 bill when a fin was the equivalent of $10 today.

But that lineup of barbers gave out a lot in addition to service—information!

With a haircut a customer was also furnished all the latest gossip and news, the inside dope on basketball, football and baseball, the latest on promotions, demotions, scandals, affairs and some culture thrown in for good measure.

Backbone of the shop money-wise was the large clutch of CIPS company employees who traded there. Adkins says that during one flood he had to close up, but George Lucke of the CIPS saved the day with an invitation to set up shop on the floor of the CIPS offices—that was before the company had its own building here, and was operating on the second floor of the old Denton-Charles building on State, east of city hall.
